CLEMSON TIGER FOOTBALL

Charles Hafley 10

Charles Hafley's family has always been there to support him. For games at Clemson, the family meets at his mother's nail shop to drive 10 hours, 750 miles to see him play in Death Valley. For away games, the family gathers at the nail shop to watch the game on TV. They always call him after the game offer their critique of him.

Braxton K. Williams 14

Williams grew up very familiar to Clemson football tradition. His father and former Tiger All-American Jeff Davis, each attended Dudley HS and then went on to play football at Clemson. On Clemson's 1981 National Championship team, Williams' father (Braxton) was a red-shirt full-back and Davis was the captain of the nation's #1 defense.

Jovon Bush 49

Jovon Bush is the only three-year letterman on the defensive line and will be one of the leaders of a defense full of youth and potential. It is a position that comes with burdens and expectations, but it is a position he relishes. "It's the pressure that I like," Bush said. "I want a lot of the younger guys to be able to look to me for advice and pointers."

Trevor Pryce 64

When he's not playing for the Denver Broncos, defensive tackle Trevor Pryce is busy with his record label, Outlook Music Co. Pryce, a Pro Bowl selection each of the last two years, has musical aspirations. Inspired by raggaie icon Bob Marley and hip-hop pioneers Public Enemy, Pryce has been mixing beats for years.

McFadden & Parker 117

A story behind the story of what college athletic programs seek but seldom find—the great competitor with talent to match. Duke found its first in 1933 with Clarence (Ace) Parker. Clemson matched the "find" three years later in Banks McFadden. Almost unarguable, they remain some 65 years later the ultimate sports heroes of their respective schools.

1981 Revisited 118

The season series looking back at the most successful season in Clemson history, the 1981 National Championship season, continues today with the reflections of former All-American Perry Tuttle and the midseason wins against Kentucky, Virginia and Duke. The three wins propelled Clemson to a 6-0 record, the first 6-0 start since 1948.

Today's Game

Mance In top 10 in Punt and Kick Returns

Clemson Head Coach Tommy Bowden said during the preseason that he thought he would have the best special teams since he has been the head coach of the Tigers. That is proving to be a correct prediction, and the leader of the special teams production has been cornerback Brian Mance.

Mance has been a terror for opposing special teams coaches through the first two weeks of the season. His production is reflected in the first round of NCAA Statistics released Sept. 9. The junior is ranked fourth in the nation in kickoff returns with a 35.2-yard average on five returns, and is ninth in punt returns with a 16.7-yard average on six returns. He has 176 yards on kickoff returns and an even 100 on punt returns for a total of 276 yards on 11 total returns, 25.1 return yards every time he has touched the ball.

Mance is the only player in the nation to rank in the top 10 in the country in both categories, making him king of return men in the nation. No Clemson player has ever finished the year ranked in the top 10 in the nation in both return categories. However, one other player, Antwan Wyatt, ranked in the top 15 in both categories in 1995. That season Wyatt averaged 25.0 on kickoff returns to average 12th in the nation, and his 12.3-yard average on punt returns ranked 15th.

Mance had flashes of brilliance in the return game as a sophomore, so his production this year is really no surprise. Last year he had six kickoff returns for a 26-yard average, and had a Clemson record 32-yard average on six punt returns in 2000. That punt return total included an 88-yard return in Death Valley against Georgia Tech, fifth longest punt return by a Tiger in history.

Mance is a prime reason Clemson ranks fifth in the nation in kickoff returns as a team and 10th in punt returns. The Tigers are also 15th in the nation in net punting, a ranking that can be directly attributed to the fine performance from Wynn Kopp. The transfer from Georgia has a 43.7 average, but does not rank in the national stats because he doesn't have enough attempts (only seven in two games, a punter must average 3.6 punt attempts per game to qualify).

Clemson has also been perfect on placekicking, as Aaron Hunt is 1-1 on field goals and 8-8 on PATs. His 43-yarder against Wofford was a career long. Clemson has also been outstanding on kick coverage. Clemson opponents have just 19 total punt return yards, 6.3 a return, and the opposition has averaged just 16.8 yards per kickoff return.

Big Day for Clemson Big Macs

Saturday's win over Wofford was a big day for Clemson wide receiver J.J. McKelvey and defensive end Bryant McNeal. Both had a direct impact on Clemson's 38-14 victory with career best performances. In fact, both players went from zero in their prime stat category in the first game to leading the Tigers in the second.

McKelvey had eight receptions for 73 yards and two scores in the victory over the Terriers. That included six catches in the second period alone. McKelvey did not have a reception in the first game, then had the eight against Wofford. In fact, he had just three career receptions for 90 yards in his career entering last Saturday. He is now ranked in the top 10 in the ACC in receiving and is second to Travis Zachery for the season. McKelvey joined Rod Gardner as the only Clemson receivers to catch two touchdown passes in a game under Tommy Bowden.

McNeal did not have a tackle in the opener against UCF. He had six in the Wofford game, including four tackles for loss, the top total for the Tigers against Wofford. That included two sacks and a caused fumble. McNeal had just nine career tackles for loss entering the Wofford game, then had four in that game. He joined Keith Adams as the only Tigers to have at least four tackles for loss in a game under Tommy Bowden.

Carson, Leake top Clemson Tacklers

Chad Carson and John Leake are becoming quite a one-two punch on Clemson's second line of defense. Against Wofford's run oriented attack last week numbers 45 and 46 combined for 34 tackles. Carson had 18 and Leake picked up a career high 16. Both players now have 25 for the season.

For Carson, the 18 tackles against Wofford tied for his second highest single game total as a Tiger. The only game that is higher is the 22-tackle performance he had against Georgia Tech at Death Valley last year. That is an ironic fact in itself considering that Carson's father played for Georgia Tech.

Carson now has 336 tackles for his career, ninth best in school history. He needs just three against Duke to move past Tim Jones into number-eight. If he averages 10 tackles a game over the rest of the season he will finish his career ranked fourth in Clemson history, trailing only Bubba Brown, Anthony Simmons and Jeff Davis. That is impressive company.

Leake has a long way to go to catch Carson, but he is taking a similar path. Carson had just 11 tackles his freshman year as a reserve linebacker in 1998. Leake had nine as a reserve last year. Carson made the starting lineup as a sophomore in 1999 and had 27 tackles in his first two games. Leake has entered the starting lineup as a sophomore and has 25 tackles through his first two games.

West Puts in Extra Effort

Some Clemson fans might have seen a strange sight during post-game traffic of Clemson's 21-13 win over Central Florida on Sept. 1. Some fans caught in the traffic on College Avenue might have noted Assistant Coach Ron West riding a green bicycle, beating the considerable traffic as the result of a crowd of 79,500 people.

West borrowed the bike owned by one of his players, offensive lineman Nick DiPrimio to get across Route 123 in a timely fashion. The reason for his haste? West was in a hurry to get to Boone, NC to see his son, Brad, play for Appalachian State in its season opening game against Liberty.

The use of the bike enabled West to save considerable time. He then took a back route to Boone and he arrived with eight minutes to go in the half. His son, a freshman, did not play in the game, but it certainly meant a lot to Brad to have his father at his first college football game.

West is one of three Clemson assistant coaches with a son who plays college football. Offensive Coordinator and Assistant Head Coach Brad Scott is the father of Clemson wide receiver Jeff Scott. The younger Scott scored a touchdown on a 22-yard run in the first game of the season against UCF, the eventual game winner. He had a reception for five yards against Wofford. Jack Hines' son Robert is the starting quarterback at Tennessee-Martin.

Duke Update

Duke enters Saturday's game with an 0-2 record. The Blue Devils lost to top-10 Florida State 55-13 in the opener, then lost at Rice last Saturday night, 15-13. The Owls are coached by former Clemson mentor Ken Hatfield.

J.J. McKelvey led the Tigers in receiving last week against Wofford with eight catches for 73 yards and two touchdowns.

Today's Game

Clemson boasts an offense that is balanced, as 13 different players have caught a pass and four different backs have at least 50 yards rushing. Duke has more of a star system when it comes to running, receiving and returns. Tailback Chris Douglas has been one of the most productive players in the nation two weeks into the season. He is second in the nation in all-purpose running.

Douglas does a little bit of everything. The native of Sherrills Ford, NC leads the Blue Devils in rushing with 143 yards. The entire team has just 171, so he has 84 percent of the club's rushing yardage. Douglas also has three receptions for 86 receiving yards, including a 78-yard touchdown. He has added 210 yards on kickoff returns, giving him 439 all-purpose running yards, 219 per game. Clemson is familiar with Douglas. He scored twice against the Tigers last year in Wallace Wade Stadium.

Reggie Love is the top receiver for the Blue Devils with eight catches for 115 yards. The 6-4 sophomore will not be making his first trip to Clemson. He was a reserve on Duke's ACC Championship men's basketball team a year ago. He made more than just token appearances. His basketball season included an eight-rebound performance against North Carolina in the ACC Championship game, a 26-point Duke win.

Clemson likes to run the football and the Tigers will be challenged this weekend by Duke. The Blue Devils held Rice to 154 yards rushing in 57 attempts last Saturday night, 2.7 yards per attempt. For the season, Duke opponents average just 3.7 yards a rush. Ryan Fowler is a player to watch on Duke's defense. The third-team freshman All-American had 87 tackles last year, including 13 tackles for loss. Ronnie Hamilton is an experience cornerback who will be someone Woodrow Dantzler will have to keep his eye on. Hamilton had 63 tackles last season and has started 29 college games in his career.

Bowden Coached at Duke

Clemson head Coach Tommy Bowden was the offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at Duke from 1983-86. That was his third different assistant coaching assignment, but his first job as a coordinator. During that time, Duke was 0-4 against Clemson, including a 21-9 Tiger victory at Duke in 1985.

In Bowden's first year as Clemson head coach, the Tigers defeated Duke in Death Valley 58-7. Last year, he improved his record as a head coach against Duke to 2-0 with a 52-22 victory. Clemson has scored 110 points in two games against the Blue Devils.

Clemson vs. Duke Series Notes

- Clemson holds a 29-15-1 lead in the series with Duke, a series that dates to a 20-6 Duke win in Durham in 1934. Duke won the first four games of the series, all played at Duke.

- Duke never played at Clemson until 1959, a 6-0 Tiger victory.

- While Clemson holds a commanding 15-4-1 lead in the series at Clemson, Clemson has a narrow 12-11 advantage in games played in Durham.

- Clemson has won nine of the last 11 overall and 16 of the last 20.

- Duke last defeated Clemson in 1998 at Duke, 28-23.

- Duke has not won at Clemson since 1980, a 34-17 Blue Devil triumph that was led by Blue Devil quarterback Ben Bennett.

- Duke defensive coordinator Bob Trott was Clemson's defensive coordinator in 1990, the year Clemson led the nation in total defense. The Tigers finished that season with a 10-2 record, the last time Clemson had a 10-victory season.

Tigers Seek 3-0 Start

As noted last week, Clemson has been 2-0 in a season just nine times in the last 31 years. Clemson has a 12-18-1 record in the second game of the season since 1970, and that includes wins in the second game of the year four of the last six years.

That said, it is obviously rare for the Tigers to jump out to a 3-0 start, certainly the team's goal heading into the Duke game. Clemson has been 3-0 or better to open a season just five times since 1961. Clemson was 12-0 in 1981, 6-0 to open 1987, 4-0 to open 1989, 3-0 to open 1991 and 8-0 to open last year.

Tigers Only Division I Team With Two Academic All-Americans

Clemson is the only school in the nation with two returning first-team Academic All-Americans on its roster. Linebacker Chad Carson and center Kyle Young were both named first-team Academic All-Americans in 2000. That was the first time in Clemson history the Tigers had two first-team selections in the same year.

Carson is a senior with a 3.94 career GPA in biological sciences and is pursuing a Rhodes Scholarship. He led the Tigers in tackles last year and ranked fourth in the nation. Young led the Tigers in knockdown blocks last year with 120. He graduated from Clemson with a 3.97 career GPA last year and is now taking postgraduate courses. He was also a first-team Academic All-American in 1999 and is trying to become just the second ACC player in history to be a three time first-team selection. Mike Diminick, who played for Duke in the 1980s, is the only other ACC player to be a three-time first-team selection.

Merritt Leads Offensive Line vs. Wofford

Clemson gained 200 yards rushing and 286 passing in the win against Wofford last week. The offensive line showed improvement over the season opener when the Tigers failed to reach the 300-yard total offense mark.

Will Merritt was average in the opener, but led the line against Wofford. The graduate student from Easley, SC, who is on the preseason Football Writers All-America list graded 89 percent and had 17 knockdown blocks. It was the second highest knockdown block total of Merritt's career. He had 21 in the win over N.C. State in 2000. Akil Smith also was lauded by Tommy Bowden after the game on Sunday. Smith, making his first start since 1999, had a blocking grade of 84 from Clemson coaches.

Bryant McNeal, who had a total of six tackles last Saturday against Wofford, had a total of four tackles for a loss of 19 yards, two of which were sacks for a combined loss of 15 yards.

Young Named to Rimington and Outland Watch List

Clemson center Kyle Young has been named one of 21 centers to be preseason Dave Rimington Award Watch List and one of 26 candidates for the Outland Trophy. The announcement about the Rimington Award was made in New York by the Boomer Esiason Foundation, the sponsor of the award. The award, which goes to the top center in college football, is named after former Nebraska All-American Dave Rimington. It will be presented Dec. 15 in Lincoln, NE.

Young was one of three finalists for the award last year, which was won by Nebraska's Dominic Raiola, who is now with the Detroit Lions. Young and Maryland center Melvin Fowler were the only ACC players among the 21 pre-season candidates.

Young is now on the preseason list for three major awards. In addition to the Outland Trophy (picked by the Football Writers Association), Young is also a preseason candidate for the Lombardi Award.

Young, a native of Clemson, is in his third year as a starter for the Tigers. He was named a second-team All-American by Football News last season and was a third-team All-American by The Sporting News. He has been a first-team Academic All-American each of the last two years and will attempt to become just the second offensive lineman in college football history to be a three-time first-team selection.

IPTAY Breaks Record

The 2000-01 academic year was a time of landmark accomplishments for Clemson athletics on and off the field. The Clemson football team returned to the top 15 of the final polls, one of 13 teams to finish in the top 25 of their respective sports polls. In the classroom, the student-athletes posted a 2.80 overall GPA, highest on record.

It was also a record-breaking year in the fund-raising area. IPTAY, Clemson's athletic fundraising organization, raised more than $20 million in pledges during the 2000-01 fiscal year according to data released by George Bennett, executive director of the nation's oldest athletic fundraising organization. The figure was more than doubled the previous record set last year.

The official dollar figure for the pledges for IPTAY 2001 was $20,278,795.80, shattering the previous record of $10,062,859.70 set during the 1999-00 fiscal year. Bennett announced that the organization had 24,879 members during the year that closed June 30, 2001, also a record.

"We had a great year and much of the reason for it is the great feeling people have about Clemson under President Jim Barker and Athletic Director Bobby Robinson," said Bennett. "Clemson people feel great about what has been going on at the university."

Bennett said there were many other reasons for the increase, including a change in the Life Member program, the Tiger Pride campaign and the growth of the endowment program. He reported that the Tiger Pride campaign raised $7.5 million this past year (not included in the above $20 million total) and now has raised $23 million. The Tiger Pride campaign has a goal of $65 million.

"We have begun a lot of digging at our athletic facilities on campus and raising money for the Tiger Pride campaign will be our emphasis this year," said Bennett. Construction has already begun on the new annex at Littlejohn Coliseum. Renovations to the south side of Clemson Memorial Stadium were ready by opening day. Further renovations to the west end of the stadium will begin after this football season.

Construction has also begun on the annex to Littlejohn Coliseum. At the moment there is a large hole over the tunnel entrance to the 34-year-old basketball facility. But, that construction site will soon become a state of the art practice facility for the Clemson men's and women's basketball teams.

"This is an exciting time in Clemson athletics. We are making improvements to all our facilities over the next few years and we could not do it without the loyal backing of IPTAY members. We realize the area around Memorial Stadium will be congested this year, but the changes we are making are going to have a positive effect on our overall program for years to come.

Bennett said it will be difficult to top the fund-raising numbers established this past year, but he and his staff are taking a positive approach. "We want to thank all the members for their pledges this year and especially the 750 IPTAY Representatives. They do a great job of selling our story around the country."

Clemson vs. Duke Series

By Sanford Rogers

Has it really been 20 years since Clemson posted a 12-0 record and captured the National Championship in Miami's Orange Bowl? It seems like just yesterday that Jeff Davis was making life miserable for opposing running backs, Georgia's Herschel Walker and South Carolina's George Rogers, to name a few, while wide receiver Perry Tuttle was making the Sports Illustrated catch against Nebraska.

This afternoon the nationally ranked Tigers entertain the Duke Blue Devils. Clemson has certainly dominated the series against Duke in recent years, claiming 16 of the last 20 contests. The Tigers hold a 29-15-1 all-time advantage in the series.

While these two squads have played 20 games of the series here at Clemson and 23 in Durham, they have also played two neutral sight contests about as far away from each other as possible.

In 1971, Clemson, then 0-3 on the year, claimed a 3-0 win over a then-undefeated (4-0) Duke team coached by current South Carolina Athletic Director Mike McGee. The contest was dubbed The Oyster Bowl and played in Norfolk, VA. McGee, an All-American guard at Duke in 1959, led the Blue Devil program from 1971-1978.

In 1991, Clemson made its second trek to the Far East to take a 33-21 win over Duke in Tokyo, Japan. The win sealed the ACC Championship for the Tigers, the last ACC title won by Clemson. The first trip to Tokyo was in 1982 when Clemson posted a 21-17 win over Wake Forest. The 1982 and 1991 seasons are the only two times in the last 18 seasons that Clemson has not ended the regular season against South Carolina.

When looking back at the 1981 National Championship season, most Tiger fans might recall the tilt with the Blue Devils as a tune-up. Clemson coasted to an easy 38-10 road win on Oct. 17 of that year. Tiger running back Cliff Austin had the top rushing game of the season with 178 on 19 attempts, including a non-scoring 77-yard run. Quarterback Homer Jordan added balance in that contest, posting 13 completions in just 19 attempts for 198 yards passing to give the Tigers a balanced attack.

Duke Head Coach Red Wilson was impressed with the eventual national champion.

"Clemson deserves to be the No. 6 ranked team in the nation," Wilson said at the time. "They deserve their high ranking and may deserve an even higher rating. They are no doubt one of the top collegiate football teams in America."

Some folks may wonder what made this encounter a memorable one? Clemson players had to just look back one year, when Duke invaded Death Valley with a freshman quarterback named Ben Bennett. On that day, Oct. 18, 1980, a Blue Devil team that would finish the year with just a 2-9 overall record, blasted Clemson by a 34-17 score. Bennett not only led the Duke to the win; he taunted the Tigers after one of the final scores in the game.

Bill Smith, who was a starting defensive end for Clemson in 1981, can still remember the 1980 battle with Duke.

Kevin Mack ran for 150 yards at Duke in 1983, much to the disappointment of then-Duke assistant coach Tommy Bowden.

"The game against Duke in 1980 was the low point of that season, no question about it," said Smith. "Ben Bennett really handed it to us in that game. He just seemed to make every play."

Smith, who now lives in Columbia and serves on the Clemson Board of Trustees, recalls the 1981 game as just another step in pursuit of a conference and national title.

"We were having a great season in 1981 when the Duke came rolled around," said Smith. "I don't know if losing to them in 1980 had us any more ready to play than we would have been. But you always remember losing to a team the next time you play them."

After a 49-14 win against Duke in 1982, most Clemson supporters were expecting more of the same in Durham in 1983. But the Blue Devils rallied from a 31-10 third quarter deficit to give the Tigers all they could handle. All-American quarterback Ben Bennett, who seemed to play against Clemson for 10 years instead of just four, generated 377 yards of total offense, at the time the second most ever by a Clemson opponent. He passed for 367 yards on 53 attempts in the contest. On the last drive of the game Duke, paced by se drove all the way to the Clemson nine-yard line. A fourth down pass was deflected by James Robinson to seal the win at 38-31

It should not be surprising that Duke's wide receivers had a big day against Clemson in 1983. They were led by first year wide receivers coach named Tommy Bowden. Bowden, who joined Steve Sloan's staff prior to the 1983 season, was impressed even then with the fan support that has made Clemson famous with bowl committee's everywhere.

"What I remember is there were maybe 25,000 people at the game and 20,000 were wearing orange," said Bowden. "I do remember that our offense fought back, but just couldn't quite get it done at the very end."

Sloan, who now serves as the director of athletics at Central Florida, recalled that Bowden was a perfectionist even then.

"Tommy really added a great deal to our staff," said Sloan when he visited Tigertown two weeks ago with Golden Knights. "He expected his receivers to run exact routes and be in the right places. He was very good at working on blocking with the wide receivers. I can't begin to tell you how many knockdown blocks we had that season."

Sanford Rogers worked in the Clemson Sports Information Office as a student assistant from 1990-93 and currently serves on the stat crew.

Charles Hafley

By Laura Mosher

As the only returning starter in the strong safety position for the Tigers, Charles Hafley must be a leader. He is a natural leader in football, in the classroom, and in the community. He takes his experiences from the past and uses them to excel in his future.

"It helps me to know I am a leader now," said Hafley, who came to Clemson in 1998 from Pompano Beach, FL. "If I were to slack off or do something wrong a lot of people could be following my moves and my actions. They are going to feed off of me." This leadership role is important in the success of the 2001 Tigers. The Tigers do not have much experience in the secondary and Hafley is the only returning starter in that area of the team.

Meeting this challenge is another in a long list of goals Hafley has for his final year at Clemson. He already has accomplished one. He earned his undergraduate degree from Clemson in sociology in August 2001. He is now attending graduate school and is one of seven starters on the 2001 Tigers who have already earned degrees.

When Hafley first came to Clemson and was talking to Bill D'Andrea, the director of student-athlete enrichment, he said some people were challenging his ability to ever earn a degree from Clemson because of a poor educational reputation in his area of Florida. "They didn't think I was going to make it to graduation, but the Lord brought me out and he gave me the opportunity and I made it last Aug. 11. I had a great opportunity, realized it and made the most of it."

Hafley is proud of graduating, especially with a year of eligibility remaining because it shows others that he is more than just a football player. He carries the responsibility he demonstrates in the classroom onto the field and tries to be responsible every series and every play.

Beyond his leadership on the football field and in the classroom, Hafley is active in the community. In addition to his personal involvement, he encourages his teammates to participate as well. Hafley likes to encourage his teammates to participate in community service; he thinks it makes them better people outside of football.

At Clemson, Hafley volunteers at the Pine Grove Baptist Church, Playtime Center and the YMCA. He is also an active member of LIFE Line, the football team's leadership organization.

In Florida, he gives presentations at many Boys and Girls Clubs. Most of his community service time in Florida is spent talking with kids at the Boys & Girls Club in Pompano Beach, where he grew up. He is active at Mitchell Moore Community Center, and he participates at some of the camps run by NFL players. These are just a few of Hafley's endeavors that demonstrate his commitment to community service.

Hafley is inspired to be active in the community because of the positive influence volunteers had on him. Pompano Beach can be a hard place to grow up because there are many negative influences. He gives partial credit for his success to the many volunteers in the Pompano Beach community.

"I see others being active in the community who helped me get where I am now and where I am going." His community service, while benefiting others, is still influencing his life in a positive way. Through every community service opportunity Hafley is able to meet new people and explore new places.

Hafley has a drive to experience new places. One of the reasons he chose Clemson was so he could explore places outside of Florida; however, this was not his main reason for choosing Clemson. "The reason I chose Clemson was because of the education, people, the fans and the atmosphere."

He also chose Clemson because his mother felt that is was a very comfortable atmosphere.

He took his mother's opinion on his future university very seriously because she has always been the most influential person in his life. "It's her smiles, her good will and her spirit that keep me going."

Hafley grew up in a large family. His family consists of his mom, Pat Lyas-Godbolt, his pop, James Godbolt and seven sisters. His family has always been supportive of Hafley. A large crowd came to his graduation Aug. 11.

"It is just a family affair. My family is a big family and that is what keeps me going. I have a great family of support and that is the main thing that has kept me going socially, spiritually, educationally and athletically. They gave me support from day one when I was in little league all the way until now, and I have faith that they will keep on doing so after my college career."

The Hafley family, including Hafley's aunts and uncles, meet at Pat Lyas-Godbolt's nail shop every weekend of a Clemson home game and drive the 10 hours, 750 miles to see Hafley play in Death Valley. If Clemson has an away game, the family gathers at the nail shop to watch the game; then they always call Hafley after the game. Hafley said, "They give me accolades if I do well, and they tell me if I don't do so well. They tell it like it is."

Hafley gets constructive criticism from many different people. He gets criticism from his pop. He also gets criticism from his two nephews and one cousin, who are just starting little league football. They are all about 7-years-old, but, "they know the game of football." Hafley is very proud of them and cannot wait to see them play. It is good to see the Hafley football tradition is carried on through the younger generations.

Hafley also gets constructive criticism from current NFL players. Some of his high school teammates are now playing in the NFL. Corey Simon went to Florida State and now plays for the Philadelphia Eagles. Tyrone Carter went to Minnesota and now plays for the Minnesota Vikings. Henry and Zack Crockett went to Florida State. Henry Crockett is playing for the Atlanta Falcons and Zack Crockett is playing for the Oakland Raiders. "They all inspire me everyday."

All of these players watch each other play, and they discuss what they are doing well and how they each could improve. When Hafley and his friends from the NFL are home in the summer, they all work out together. He gives a lot of credit for his success to his family and friends.

Hafley says the most influential football career would be his pop who was Hafley's little league football coach and has been there to support him throughout his athletic career. "He has been through the days of hard work, so he knows what college football is like. He has been there for me from a man's point of view and also from an athlete's point of view."

The criticism and support from his friends and family have given Hafley the strength to grow into the player he is today. He had his best season in the year 2000 when he recorded 106 tackles, the most ever recorded by a Clemson strong safety. He is only the third Clemson defensive back in history to record a 100-tackle season.

One great memory that Hafley has of the 2000 season was in the game against Missouri. The Missouri quarterback threw a pass to the player who Hafley was covering. This surprised Hafley because, "I was covering him very well." Obviously he was covering the Missouri player very well because Hafley intercepted the pass and ran it 27 yards for a touchdown. It was the key turning point in a barrage of Clemson points, leading to a 62-9 Tiger victory.

Why did Hafley have such a great junior season? How did he increase his tackle total by over three-fold from the previous year? He became a starter in the 2000 season and he almost doubled the number of plays. While he knows his starting position had a lot to do with his tackle increase, he believes there is another reason. "The thing that most helped me from a tackling standpoint is that I became a student of the game." He continues to study the game and hopes to increase his tackle total this year over last season.

Hafley's breakout junior year was no surprise to Tiger fans who have followed his progress. He first

Charles Hafley has an army of support from his family and from his former teammates at Ely High School in Pompano Beach, FL who are now in the NFL. came on the scene in the final game of the 1998 season against South Carolina. In fact, he always seems to play one of his best games against the Gamecocks. In the past three games against Clemson's state rival he has had a total of 23 tackles.

He says there are two main reasons for his success against South Carolina. First, Hafley plays his best for the seniors. "It is always their last game and he wants it to be a great final game. You want those guys to go out a winner in their last game of the regular season. It is a game they will remember the rest of their life."

The second reason he plays so well against the Gamecocks is because it is such a great rivalry. "If we are at Death Valley playing here in front of 80,000 great fans or if we are in Columbia playing in front of their fans, it motivates me even more." It seems that Hafley just plays better when he is under pressure.

Hafley truly believes in team unity. Not only does he participate in community service with his teammates, he spends time with them before every game, outside of practice. On the Thursday nights before the games some of the team members get together at Hafley's apartment and bond. They eat, play cards and play video games. Being able to get along off the field really helps with team unity on the field.

Another tradition Hafley has before each football game is listening to music by Kurt Franklin. "It just motivates me to listen to gospel music before I play; it is inspirational."

Hafley always writes PNO on his right wristband. PNO stands for Pompano Beach, FL. He has this written there because it reminds him of his childhood and all of his hard work "throughout the learning process of life."

This season will be a very meaningful year for Hafley. Not only is this his last year, he gets to play against two Florida teams in Death Valley. He opened the season against the Central Florida, where a lot of his high school teammates and high school opponents attend school. He will play his last game in Death Valley against Florida State. "Ending my Death Valley career against Florida State is going to be tremendous."

"It is a great feeling to see that I am coming out of my shell now. Playing in Death Valley with all the fans and getting a chance to rub the rock and run down the hill is just tremendous. I can't describe that feeling to anyone. You have to be in your own shoes to feel it."

"It's just been a blessing to have had the opportunity to play at Clemson. I very much appreciate it. To leave with a degree is better than anything else because they can't take it away from me. I have been very blessed."

Laura Mosher is a senior from Saline, MI and works in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Braxton K. Williams

By Jacob Barker

Over his career at Clemson, Braxton K. Williams has made a name for himself as a versatile, athletic linebacker who has a knack for making spectacular plays in some of Clemson's biggest games. This season, the senior linebacker from Greensboro, NC is playing his third different position in four years. While his position on the team has been like a revolving door, his reputation as a versatile playmaker has been a constant ever since his arrival at Clemson.

Williams attended Dudley High School in Greensboro and ironically it was basketball that was his first love while growing up. As a basketball player at Dudley, he scored more than 1,000 points in his career and was rated among the top 300 recruits in the nation after his junior season. Several schools recruited him to play basketball and he even had a scholarship offer to play at Wake Forest.

As much as he enjoyed basketball, however, he wondered if he might not have a better future as a football player. So during the fall of his senior year, Williams made his debut on the gridiron as a running back for Dudley. "With my body size, I knew football was the thing for me," Williams stated. "Besides, you can run around and hit somebody in football."

During his senior year, Williams rushed for 1,559 yards on 159 carries and led his team to the Class 3A semifinals. That season he also intercepted eight passes and scored 14 touchdowns. In addition to stellar football and basketball careers at Dudley, Williams finished third in the state in the 400 meters as a member of the Dudley track team. For his three sport accomplishments, Williams was named Dudley's Athlete-of-the-Year in 1998.

During his senior year, several schools began recruiting Williams to play football. He knew he wanted to stay close to home and play in the ACC, so he narrowed down his choices to North Carolina and Clemson. Even in high school, Williams was very familiar with Clemson's football tradition. His father, along with former Clemson All-American and NFL great Jeff Davis, had each attended Dudley and then gone on to play football at Clemson. On Clemson's 1981 National Championship team, Williams' father, Braxton Williams, was a red-shirt fullback and Jeff Davis was the captain of the nation's #1 ranked defense.

"Jeff Davis was a little older than my father, but they did live in the same neighborhood growing up and I know that my grandmother and his mother were very good friends," stated Williams.

To the delight of Clemson fans, Williams signed with Clemson and enrolled as a freshman in the fall of 1998. "It came down to North Carolina and Clemson," remembered Williams. "Because of Clemson's great tradition in football, I knew this would be the place that would help me achieve my goal of playing professional football. I've thought about basketball a few times and what it might be like if I had chosen that. I still play once or twice a week in the offseason, but I never really thought about walking on here at Clemson."

Upon his arrival at Clemson, Williams was moved to defensive back. Before the start of the 1998 season, however, he was moved to linebacker where as a true freshman he played in all 11 games. He had his best game of the season in a narrow loss at Virginia. In that game he played 25 snaps and had three tackles including two sacks for eight yards each. He also had two other quarterback pressures against an experienced Virginia offensive line. The following week against Wake Forest, Williams registered four tackles from his outside linebacker position.

Although he gained valuable playing experience mostly on special teams and in nickel coverage during his freshman year, the transition from running back to linebacker was at times difficult for Williams. "As a running back in high school I was used to running from people and when I got to Clemson I had to learn how to run into people," recalled Williams. "That transition was kind of a problem for me, but I got used to it quickly."

As a sophomore in 1999, Williams played in all 12 games and started at outside linebacker in seven of those contests. He had 12 total tackles and two tackles for loss in the opening game of the season against Marshall.

In the second game of the season Clemson matched up with nationally ranked Virginia in Death Valley. Williams, as he had done a year earlier, dominated the Cavalier offense in a 33-14 Clemson win. Although he registered nine tackles and a sack in the game, it was on a play that he did not get any statistical credit that Clemson fans got their first glimpse of Williams' tremendous athletic ability. In the first half, with Virginia driving the ball deep into Tiger territory, Williams tipped the Clemson sideline and batted back in bounds a Thomas Jones fumble caused by Terry Jolly. Although Williams did not get credit for a tackle or a recovered fumble on the play, his effort allowed teammate Terry Bryant to recover the fumble and end the Virginia drive. "That play was definitely one of the most memorable of my career," recalled Williams. "When I played basketball I used to love trying to save balls as they were going out of bounds. That play really reminded me of my days playing basketball."

"That play amazed me," said fellow linebacker Chad Carson. "I was running after the ball and I thought it was going out of bounds and all of a sudden Braxton tipped it back in and we jumped on it."

For his performance against Virginia, Williams was named the ACC Defensive Back of the Week.

The following game against eighth-ranked Virginia Tech, Williams had 10 tackles and a sack against the elusive Michael Vick. For the season, he was second on the team with four sacks for a loss of 34 yards.

Against Florida State, in the seventh game of the 1999 season, Williams again dazzled fans with his versatility and athleticism. Although he participated in only one play that game, it was a play that many Clemson fans still remember vividly. While trailing the Seminoles 3-0 in the second quarter, the Tigers faced a fourth and 13 from the Florida State 46-yard line. While in punt formation, Clemson punter Ryan Ramano took the snap from center and tossed a quick pass to Williams who had lined up on the end of the offensive line. As he had done many times as a running back at Dudley High School, Williams took the ball for a 23-yard gain and a Clemson first down. Six plays later, Woody Dantzler threw a seven-yard touchdown pass to Rod Gardner to give Clemson a 7-3 lead in the game. "That play against Florida State along with the one against Virginia, are plays that I will Braxton K. Williams' hard work and dedication in the classroom, earned him distinction last year as the Athletic Department's most improved student.

Braxton K. Williams

never forget," stated Williams.

In the regular season finale against South Carolina, Williams had a season and still career-best 11 tackles in Clemson's 31-21 over the Gamecocks in Columbia. "I had probably the best hit of my career in that game," remembered Williams. "When their fullback came through the line of scrimmage I was there waiting for him and even though it didn't look that hard on film, I still remember it well."

After solid freshman and sophomore years, it was not until last season that Williams hit full stride both on and off the field at Clemson. In 2000, he started at outside linebacker in 11 out of 12 of Clemson's games and his 70 tackles for the season ranked fifth on the team. In the last three games of the season against Florida State, South Carolina and Virginia Tech, Williams had 24 total tackles despite playing just 45 snaps against South Carolina and 40 snaps in the Gator Bowl.

As numerous as his on the field accomplishments were last season, Williams' performance in the classroom was even more impressive. He was named First-Team Academic All-ACC last season and was awarded 'most improved in the classroom' by the Vickery Hall staff out of all the student-athletes at Clemson. "Before last season, I made it one of my goals that I was going to improve my grades," said Williams. "I was tired of having to go to study hall, but I also began to realize the importance of my education."

"Every year we try to pick out the student athlete that has made the most improvement in the classroom," said Joe White, Clemson's student-athlete enrichment advisor for football. "Last year we felt like Braxton was the person that was most deserving of that award. I really think that he was tired of having to come to study hall, but now that he does not have to come he still comes in regularly to work with the tutors. He has worked really hard over the past year, and he has now put himself in a position to graduate this summer or next fall."

This year during spring practice, Williams was moved from his outside linebacker position to a newly created more versatile position called the "star safety." The star safety, which is a combination of the linebacker and defensive back positions, is where Williams took almost all of his snaps in the spring. With a season ending knee injury to linebacker Altroy Bodrick last month, however, the versatile Williams was moved back to his old outside linebacker position.

"Strong-side linebackers and star safeties have to be talented kids because you are out in space," Defensive Coordinator Reggie Herring stated. "It's harder for stiffer, slower, and not as gifted kids to make tackles and react out in space as well. Yes, the injury to Altroy hurts the team, but how bad it hurts will depend on how well Braxton Williams steps up to the plate and is accounted for."

While the frequent shuffling of positions would be too difficult for many players to adjust to, all Williams has to do is remember back to his freshman year when he was asked to play linebacker after having played running back in high school. "I feel so blessed to be here today and to be in the position I am and I will do whatever I need to do to help this team win," stated Williams.

Williams attributes Clemson's success during the last two seasons to the strict discipline enforced by Head Coach Tommy Bowden and his coaching staff. "When coach Bowden came here, he really brought a discipline to the team that we did not have before," stated Williams. "Coach Herring has also been a big influence on me and I look for our defense to do good things this season."

While coach Bowden and coach Herring have served as Williams' authority on the football field, it has been his grandmother who has been his steady force off the gridiron. "My grandmother is my rock," said Williams. "I lived with her growing up and she has definitely had the biggest influence on my life. She is involved with everything I do and every decision I make."

After graduation, Williams is planning to pursue a career in professional football. "I think playing in the NFL should be the goal of every college player," Williams stated. "It has been a dream of mine ever since I began playing football, but if that does not work out at least I know that I will have my degree to fall back on."

If playing in the NFL does not work out for Williams he hopes to one day become a record producer. "I love all different kinds of music, and music has always been a very important part of my life, Williams stated. "I have a program on my computer where I can produce my own songs and I spend a lot of my free time doing that."

With the 2001 season now under way, Williams is focused on leading Clemson to another bowl game and a possible ACC and National Championship. With only four starters returning on defense this season for the Tigers, the versatility and athleticism that Williams has shown over his career will again be counted on if Clemson is to achieve those goals.

Jacob Barker is from Clemson, SC and is a second-year graduate assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

President James F. Barker

Building A Future For Clemson

ties enhancements will include the opening of a new biotechnology complex, the renovation of Fike Recreation Center, and significant progress on the Tiger Pride athletics facilities campaign.

A 1970 Clemson graduate, the former dean of the university's College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities was named president in October 1999.

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in St. Louis. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

He is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that association. Barker was named Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. He also has been a partner in an architectural practice.

He has received honorary doctorate degrees from South Carolina State University and Mars Hill College and has served on the Truman Scholars Selection Committee.

As a dean at Clemson, Barker co-founded the S.C. Design Arts Partnership to support community design outreach projects, initiated the Charleston Architecture Center, established the university's "Arts in April" program, and developed a Mayors' Institute to help city leaders learn how to manage issues related to growth and development.

Despite his new responsibilities as president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. He is part of a team of instructors who teach an undergraduate course exploring "a sense of place" in architecture, literature, and history.

"I think it's important that a president never lose touch with the classroom," he said.

The Barkers — Jim and Marcia — have two sons: Britt, a student at Daniel High School, and Jacob, who graduated from the University of North Carolina, attending on a baseball scholarship, and is now enrolled in Graduate School at Clemson.

Clemson University's 14th President, James F. Barker, brought to the job a clear vision of Clemson's future that since has evolved into a new set of goals designed to make Clemson one of the nations' top 20 public universities.

To achieve that ambitious goal, Barker is focusing on building the quality of teaching, research and service programs, as well increasing Clemson's involvement in international programs, recruiting stronger students, improving the library, winning athletic championships, and providing more resources in and out of the classroom.

"South Carolina students deserve to have access to a top-tier education without leaving their home state," he said. "Building Clemson's academic, research and service programs to the level where we can compete with anyone will benefit our state, our students, and our alumni."

Considerable progress is already being made toward achieving a top-20 ranking. In the past year, Clemson was named TIME Magazine's Public College of the Year, saw the largest one-year increase in research funding in history, and its highest SAT average among freshmen.

More progress is expected this year. A new academic support center will give students access to tutoring, counseling, workshops and other resources to help them improve their academic performance. A new Rutland Center for Ethics will help faculty, students and members of the community foster skills for making ethical judgments. Facili-

Jim Barker, above with wife Marcia, has set a goal to make Clemson one of the top 20 Public Universities in the nation.

Head Coach Tommy Bowden

I haven't taken Tommy Bowden long to bring Clemson back to its customary place among the elite programs in the nation. A team with a 3-8 record in 1998, Clemson was ranked third in the nation in the USA Today Poll of Oct. 22, 2000 after an 8-0 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

Making a swift improvement is nothing new for Bowden. In 1997, he took over a 4-7 Tulane program and brought the Green Wave to a 7-4 mark in his first year. In 1998, the improvement continued with an 11-0 regular season and number-seven national ranking. In 1999, Bowden inherited a 3-8 Clemson team and elevated the Tigers to a bowl game and 6-6 final record. The 2000 Tigers concluded the season with a 9-3 record, its high win total since 1993.

As you can see, a pattern has formed in Tommy Bowden's head coaching career. In each of his first four years he has coached his team to exactly a three-win improvement over the previous year, believed to be a first in Division I college football history. If he brings Clemson to another three-win improvement in 2001 it really would be newsworthy, because the Tigers would have a 12-0 record, and a National Championship. Bowden already is just the third coach in Clemson history to bring the Tigers to a three-win improvement in consecutive years and is one of just two Division I coaches (John Robinson at UNLV) to do it over the 1999 and 2000 seasons.

In his first two years at Clemson, Bowden has a 15-9 record with the Tigers, and two bowl appearances. In 2001, he will attempt to do something that predecessors Jess Neely, Frank Howard, Charley Pell, Danny Ford and Ken Hatfield all failed to do: take the Tigers to a bowl game each of his first three years with the program.

The Tigers set 57 school records in 2000 and have set 98 marks in the 24 games Bowden has served as head coach, over four per game. The 2000 season produced a Heisman Trophy contender in quarterback Woodrow Dantzler, who personally set 16 of the 45 individual bests recorded by Clemson athletes last season. The 12 team records set in 2000 included total offense per game in a season (437), touchdowns in a season (55) and most points in a season (416).

Clemson was one of the most balanced teams in the nation in 2000. Clemson ranked in the top 15 in the nation in scoring offense, total offense and rushing offense. It had a top 25 ranking in passing efficiency offense. Clemson was one of six teams nationally to average more than 200 yards rushing and 200 yards passing in 2000. He is the only Division I coach to average at least 190 of each category and at least 430 yards of total offense over the last four years.

For the first time ever, Clemson had two 1000-yard rushers and a 1000-yard receiver on the same team. Defensively, Chad Carson and Keith Adams both ranked in the top 10 in the nation in tackles per game and four Tigers were named first-team All-ACC, the high figure since 1991.

His second Clemson team was one of the most decorated in history. Six different Clemson players were finalists or semifinalist for national position awards, including linebacker Keith Adams, who was one of the final three candidates for the Butkus Award. Center Kyle Young was one of the top three candidates for the Dave Rimington Award. Four players were named All-Americans and eight players were first or second-team all-conference selections.

Young and Chad Carson were both named first-team Academic All-Americans, making Clemson the only Division I-A school in the nation to have a pair of first-team selections. For the second straight year the football team had its highest team GPA on record and a record number of ACC Academic honor roll recipients. Seven starters on the 2001 team already have degrees from Clemson.

When Bowden came to Clemson, he had one simple goal — Improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden's goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach of the Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation's third toughest regular season schedule ac-ording to Jeff Sagarin. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final conference standings, a six-place improvement over the previous season, the greatest one season jump in ACC history in league play.

The Tigers also made a four-game ACC win improvement in 1999. It was just the fifth time in ACC history that a team made that big of a league victory jump. Bowden had taken over a team with a losing record and brought it to a bowl game in his first season, just the sixth coach in ACC history to accomplish that feat.

The Clemson program set or tied 41 school records in Bowden's first year, including 26 on offense. Ironically, Bowden's first Tulane team set or tied 26 offensive school records.

The improvements in the ACC standings were thanks in large part to an innovative offensive attack. The Clemson offense ended the season averaging 402.6 yards per game, nearly a 100-yard per game improvement over 1998. The Tigers scored 26.8 points per game in 1999 compared to 19.8 in 1998. Clemson's 42 touchdowns in 1999 ranked fifth best in school history.

In 1998, Clemson ranked 103rd in the nation in turnover margin, but in 1999 the Tigers were 11th, an incredible 92-place improvement in the rankings. Clemson has a 209-80 advantage in points off turnovers in his first two years at Clemson.

Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson was first in the ACC in that category for the second straight season, and the final total established a school record. Three players (Keith Adams - 15.5, Chad Carson - 12.0, Robert Carswell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top four tacklers in the league.

The Bowden Family: Tommy, Linda, Lauren and Ryan.

Adams, a sophomore that season, finished the season with 186 tackles, highest in the nation, and broke the Clemson single season tackle record held by Anthony Simmons. They all contributed to the 17th best pass efficiency defense in the nation, a unit that had 19 interceptions, ninth highest in the country.

Thanks to the wide open offensive attack several Clemson players made their presence felt in the national rankings and the Clemson record book. Sophomore running back Travis Zachery had 16 touchdowns to rank ninth in the country in scoring.

Junior wide receiver Rod Gardner became the school's first 1000-yard receiver. Gardner had 80 receptions for 1084 yards, Clemson single season records in both areas. He was 17th in the nation in receptions per game with a 6.6 mark. His yards per game average of 91.7 was 23rd best in the nation.

For the first time in Clemson history two Tiger quarterbacks threw for over 1000 yards in a season. Woodrow Dantzler passed for 1506 yards, while Brandon Streeter passed for 1466 yards during the regular season. The two diametrically opposite quarterbacks had total offense games over 350 yards, a testimony to Bowden's offensive system.

Clemson played the third toughest schedule in the nation in 1999. Four of Clemson's losses came against teams ranked in the top 15 of the final AP poll. Bowden Bowl I, the first ever meeting between father and son head coaches in college football history, took place on October 23, 1999. Bowden faced his father Bobby's top ranked Florida State team in Death Valley in front of a national television audience. The Tigers lost a tough battle to the eventual National Champions, 17-14, the closest margin of victory for the Seminoles and the fewest points they recorded all season by two touchdowns.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team's fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark and finished the 1998 season ranked seventh in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

His Tulane team had a 22-game average of 39.7 points, 5.1 touchdowns, 463 yards of total offense, 270.5 yards passing, and 192.6 yards rushing. The Green Wave averaged 6.34 yards per play, and converted on third down 47 percent of the time.

Some say the most telling statistic in terms of wins and losses and the most telling statistic when it comes to coaching ability is turnover margin. The Green Wave ranked fifth in the nation in turnover margin each of his seasons at Tulane.

It didn't take Bowden long to put Tulane back on the college football landscape. In his first year, Tulane was picked last in the preseason polls of Conference USA. But, he led the New Orleans based school to a 7-4 record, a second-place conference standing with just one league loss, and set 33 school records in the process, including 26 on offense.

Tulane's accomplishments on offense were noteworthy in 1997, but their offensive charts reached uncharted areas in 1998. Tulane stood as the only school in the nation that averaged over 300 yards per game passing and 200 yards per game rushing. The team ranked fourth in the nation in total offense (507.1 per game) and second in scoring (45.4 points per game).

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight contests in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense.

They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays.

The 1998 season saw the program post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach of the Year.

Bowden's team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979 and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated BYU in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other men named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. Obviously, the Bowdens are the first family of college coaching and this "Wonder Years" environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden's decision to enter the coaching world.

The fatherly influence of a college coach who reached 300 career wins against his son in 1999, also had an influence on other members of the family. Terry has been a head coach at Samford and Auburn, posting a 47-17-1 record at the latter. Terry serves as an in-studio commentator for ABC's college football package. Jeff Bowden is in his seventh year as wide receivers coach at Florida State, his first as offensive coordinator.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-74-75 and then for Frank Signetti during the 1976 season.

As a junior he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 season and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Signetti's staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a GA. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

That experience confirmed to Bowden that he was in a profession that would be his life's work. The Seminoles posted a 19-4 mark in his two seasons at Florida State.

In 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the Spring practice session of 1980. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers running backs coach for the 1980 season. Among the players he coached was James Brooks, who went on to a 13-year NFL career and is still second in Auburn history in rushing.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked 13th in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record and a Gator Bowl championship.

In 1983, Bowden accepted his first job as a coordinator. He served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the Blue Devils quarterbacks coach and offensive coordinator. It was as the Duke offensive coordinator that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to an NFL career.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was at Alabama that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Alabama Offensive Coordinator.

In 1990, Bowden returned to a coordinator position, serving Kentucky as its offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That season he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He would remain with the SEC Tigers for six years, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn was a combined 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four Associated Press top 25 seasons, including a number-four final ranking in 1993 and a number-nine final rating in 1994. The Tigers were 20-1-1 in 1993-94 combined. Bowden worked under his brother Terry Bowden for his last four years at Auburn and the Tigers had a 36-9-1 record with both Bowdens on the staff.

Born on July 10, 1954, in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown High in West Virginia. The couple has two children, Ryan (19), a sophomore at Clemson, and Lauren (16) a junior at Daniel High in Clemson.

Death Valley

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999.

In the 1970s, 1980s and 1990s, various publications named top 10 stadiums in college football and Clemson Memorial Stadium, affectionately known as "Death Valley," has been a common denominator on those lists.

The facility's mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson's corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 208 games in the previous 59 years there (208-81-7) and has won over 70 percent of the contests. Thirty-three times since 1983, crowds have exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow. This year Clemson celebrates its 60th year in this outstanding facility.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten half-way through.

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the

Clemson has had 33 crowds of more than 80,000 in Death Valley, including a record of 86,092 for Bowden field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 pm and we played at 2:00 pm." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled-the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Clemson Traditions

First Friday Parade

The Clemson football season kicks off each year with the annual First Friday Parade. The once-a-year event takes place on the Friday afternoon prior to the first home game (Aug. 31 this year). Floats from various fraternities and sororities and other campus organizations are represented in the parade that rolls down highway 93 in front of the President's Home in Clemson. The parade culminated at the Amphitheater in the heart of campus where the first Pep Rally of the year takes place.

The Grant Marshal of parade is featured at the pep rally. Last year, President Jim Barker was the Grand Marshal. At the conclusion of the parade route he disappeared for a few moments, only to reappear on the stage of the amphitheater in the Tiger mascot's suit. Other Grand Marshals have been Clemson legend Frank Howard, former PGA Tour pro Dillard Pruitt, Hall of Fame coach Jess Neely and noted television announcers Brent Musburger and Ara Parseghian.

Homecoming

Tigerama is the World's largest pep rally and it takes place on the Friday evening prior to Homecoming. This combination pep rally, beauty pageant, fireworks display and skit presentation attracts over 30,000 people. It was the brainchild of former Clemson legend Gator Farr, who was the master of pep rallies in the 1940s and 1950s. This year Tigerama will be held at Death Valley on Oct. 19 at 7:00 PM.

Clemson will face North Carolina on Homecoming on Oct. 20 this year. The Tigers are 26-2-2 since 1971 on Homecoming with the only losses coming to Georgia Tech in 1989 and to Virginia in 1997. The first homecoming game played at Clemson took place on Sept. 30, 1922 when Centre defeated Clemson at Riggs Field, 21-0.

Clemson has celebrated Homecoming every year since 1922 with the exception of the 1930 and 1938 seasons. Clemson has a 56-18-3 record on Homecoming games over the years, a .755 winning percentage and has outscored the opposition 1644-1010 in those previous 77 games. The average margin of victory is 21 to 13.

Howard's Rock

When the Clemson team gathers to Run Down the Hill (see Running Down the Hill) the players rub Howard's Rock because of the mystical powers it is supposed to give Clemson players. The rock is mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill and was given to Coach Frank Howard by a friend (S.C. Jones' 19) who picked it up in Death Valley, CA. The Rock was first placed on the pedestal at the top of the hill on Sept. 24, 1966, a game Clemson won 40-35 over Virginia. The team started rubbing the rock for the first game of 1967, a 23-6 win over Wake Forest on Sept. 23, 1967. The pedestal was refurbished prior to the 2000 season.

Running Down the Hill

Running Down the Hill is one of the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint. After Clemson's last warmup, the team retreats to the home dressing room located under the West Stands. At about 12:50 (for normal 1:00 P.M. game), the team boards two buses and drives around the periphery of the stadium to the east side of the field.

After everyone is properly collected, the cannon sounds, Tiger Rag is played and Clemson charges down the hill (exactly 100 feet top to bottom) and onto the field. It is one of the most celebrated entrances in sport. The Tigers have done it for every game since 1942, except for 1970, 1971 and four games of the 1972 season.

In all, the Tigers have run down the hill 280 times heading into 2001. How in the world did the tradition of running down the hill start? There is no long involved explanation. It used to be the quickest way to get to the field. When the stadium was built in 1942 the football lockerrooms were up the street in Fike Fieldhouse.

When the players were finished getting dressed they used to walk out the front door and walk down the street to "The Hill". Coach Howard continued the tradition when lockerrooms were finally built inside the stadium because Clemson fans used to get so fired up when they gathered at the top of the hill. That's when the buses came into use to spend the trip from the lockerroom to the other side of the stadium. Clemson now has a record of 202-72-7, a .731 percentage winning mark, when they run down the hill. Clemson is 6-9 (40 percent) when it doesn't use the hill as its entrance.

The Tiger Paw

John Antonio holds a special place in the hearts of Tiger fans and in the pocketbooks of sports marketing entrepreneurs. Antonio invented the Tiger paw, the distinctive logo of the Clemson athletic teams that has become synonymous with this University's athletic success.

Antonio was an innovative account executive with Henderson Advertising in Greenville, and prior to the 1970 season, unveiled the Paw as Clemson's new logo. It has shown up all over the country on items owned by Clemson fans. Many institutions with a feline as mascot have used the logo, or an impression of it.

Antonio also came up with the phrase, "Fly the friendly skies of United," when he worked for the Leo Burnette Agency in Chicago. "I've never had a logo or an emblem copied as much as the Tiger Paw," said Antonio, now 70 and living in Greenville.

Antonio still remembers the day he made the presentation of the Tiger Paw to Frank Howard, then the Clemson Athletic Director. "He wasn't saying much at all," recalled Antonio in an article in the Greenville News by Alyce Atkinson on Feb. 16, 1997. "I kind of thought I was losing this fight."

At this point Antonio pulled out an orange football helmet with a tiger paw painted on the side.

"Coach Howard's eyes got as big as saucers and he smiled. From there it was downhill. Coach Howard wanted that helmet." Those Tiger paws are still on the Clemson helmets today.

TIGER MASCOT

Since 1954, a Clemson student has adorned the mascot suit to entertain the Clemson faithful. Joined in 1993 by the Tiger Cub, these furry creatures can be seen imitating game officials (now against the rules) signing autographs, getting their pictures taken with dignitaries like Presidents Reagan and Bush, shooting the cannon, or doing pushups each time Clemson scores. We keep pushup records. Last year, thanks to Tommy Bowden's record-breaking offense, Jon Potter broke the single season pushup record by over 300 pushups.

Running Down the Hill

What has been described as, "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint," actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Clemson Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season. Less than a year before Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was at war.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a walk down Williamson Road from Fike Field House's dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the hill behind the east end zone. There were no dressing facilities in the west end zone—only a big clock where the hands turned, and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the big scoreboard now stands and jog down the hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no tiger paw flag, no Tiger Rag played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side straddle hop.

That's pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the Clemson class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA, and picked up this white flint rock. He presented it to Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, CA, to Death Valley, South Carolina."

The rock laid on the floor in Howard's office in Fike for a year or more. One day Howard was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was the executive secretary of IPTAY, to "take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office."

Willimon didn't think that was the way a rock should be treated. After all, it had been brought 3000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-sixties, Memorial Stadium was pretty well living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonnie McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open the season each year by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shutouts in 39 games) and with only three wins and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting killed by the Tigers regularly. In 1948 McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

Running Down the Hill

An occasional reference to Memorial stadium by that name could be heard for the next three or four years, but when Howard started calling it 'Death Valley' in the 1950's, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 50th season in the 'valley' in 1991.

But getting back to Howard's rock.

The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966, on a day when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win (40-35) on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth period. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the hill September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest, 23-6. Prior to running down the hill that day, Howard told his players: "If you're going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you're not, keep your filthy hands off it." Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west end zone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971 and the first four of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the hill, their record was 6-9. The team decided it wanted to come down the hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above—280 times heading into the 2001 season.

After Clemson's final warm-up, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west end zone stands for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east end zone and debarks to the top of the hill behind Howard's Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying tiger paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up 'Tiger Rag'...The frenzy starts in all sincerity...and usually lasts two and a half to three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

Jovon Bush

By Louis Garmendia

He stands 6-foot-5, 300 pounds. He is just as likely to help old ladies cross the street as he is to sit in his bedroom and write poetry. So it would be fair to call Jovon Bush a gentle giant — just not on Saturdays.

"Big Bush" is on a mission to terrorize opposing quarterbacks all year long. The defensive tackle is expected to step into a starting role this season after playing most of his career as a backup. And despite a lack of notoriety to this point, Bush has high hopes for 2001.

"I want to be the best defensive lineman in the country this year," he said. "I want to be an NFL first-round draft pick in the spring. It's going to be a lot of hard work and it's easier said than done, but that's the goal."

Entering the 2001 season, Bush played in 24 consecutive games without a start. He made 20 tackles last season, including tackles in eight different games, after collecting four sacks in 1999. The contributions of Bush and other defensive linemen often go unnoticed because of the anonymity of the position. A defensive lineman's job is often to occupy blockers so that linebackers can make the tackle.

"I'm a nobody right now to most people out there," he said. "If you look in the papers and stuff like that there's not much talk about me. People haven't heard of Jovon Bush, but I want to change that this season."

He wants to make a name for himself on a defense that has more unknowns than familiar faces. Bush has heard all of the preseason talk and is ready to prove the doubters wrong.

"The guys are aware of what people think of us," he said. "If you picked up any magazine in the preseason it said that Clemson's defense is the 'weakest link.' I know that made me mad and I took it personally. I think my teammates feel the same way. I know it made Reggie Herring mad and he's the best defensive coach in the world. We're going to come out this year and surprise people."

Bush is one of the veterans on a young defensive line this season. As the only three-time letterman on the unit, he will be one of the leaders of a defense full of youth and potential. It is a position that comes with burdens and expectations, but it is a position that he relishes.

"It's the pressure that I like," said Bush. "I want a lot of the younger guys to be able to look to me for advice and pointers."

People have literally been looking up to Bush all of his life. Bush is only a few inches taller than his father, who played fullback at Savannah State. As a youngster, Bush played football like most kids his age, only he didn't play with kids his age. His mammoth size as a child forced him to play in an older age.

Jovon Bush is the only three-year letterman on this year's defensive line. While improving the defense, he is trying to create a name for himself and grab the attention of NFL scouts.

"I could never make the weight limit for my age division," said Bush. "I was a real fat kid. If you would have seen me back then and see me now you wouldn't think I was the same person."

By the eighth grade, Bush made the varsity squad for Jasper County High School and he was starting by the ninth grade. Before he graduated Bush played everything from tight end to field goal kicker. A well-rounded athlete, Bush also played basketball, threw the discus and even ran track, where he once finished third in a 100m competition.

Bush received numerous All-America awards in high school and was ranked as the 36th best player in the country by recruiting guru Tom Lemming. His performance and ability drew interest from a number of schools, including Penn State, Nebraska and Michigan. He was sure to be the first person ever from Jasper County High School to land a Division I scholarship and all he had to do was pick a school. Bush verbally committed to Tennessee before changing his mind and becoming a Tiger.

"Clemson was where I wanted to be," he said. "I guess God wanted me to come here. I don't regret it, not one minute of it. I've become a stronger person because of my experience at Clemson."

The Clemson experience for Bush includes many off-the-field endeavors. He is involved with Fellowship of Christian Athletes and helps his uncle out with real estate ventures. At home in Hardeeville, SC, Bush performs a variety of community services such as helping out local churches or speaking to elementary schools. He loves spending time with those less fortunate than him, such as a few weeks ago when he chatted Clemson football in the Anderson Mall with a handicapped fan for about half an hour.

"There are some things I do that people don't know about but I'm an introverted person," he said. "I don't do them for recognition, I do them because it is very rewarding for me personally."

Bush hopes to become the next Trevor Pryce, the former Clemson star who played defensive line and is now enjoying a successful career with the Denver Broncos in the NFL (see page 64). Both are large men that share common passions: football and music. Pryce owns his own recording studio while Bush is a budding music producer who has already cut a few CDs.

"I want to be like him," said Bush. "He's got two Super Bowl rings and now he's the highest paid defensive lineman in the NFL. He's got his own record label. We haven't had a dominant, All-American defensive lineman since he was here so I'd love to follow his footsteps."

Bush is determined to make it to the NFL, no matter how or how long it takes him to get there. With a solid senior season and his immense physique he is sure to draw interest from scouts and get an opportunity to achieve his dream.

"I'm surely going to work hard for it. It doesn't matter if I'm a first round draft pick, second round draft pick or go undrafted, I'm going to make it," he said. "Whatever it takes, I'm going to go after it. Football is not my life. There are some other things I like to do, but I love football. I'm not going to give up until its obvious that I'm not cut out to be a professional player."

Louis Garmendia is a first-year graduate assistant from Mt. Pleasant, SC and works in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Trevor Pryce

By Aaron J. Lopez
Associated Press

The petite teenager wears a No. 10 T-shirt and looks like a young Mariah Carey. Her record producer wears a No. 93 Denver Broncos jersey and looks like he could squash Mariah Carey with his index finger.

As unlikely pairings go, this one rivals Eminem and Elton John.

When he's not trying to crunch quarterbacks, Broncos defensive tackle Trevor Pryce is busy with his record label, Outlook Music Co, which recently signed 16-year-old Melissa Lujan, a young singer hoping to follow in the footsteps of pop acts like Carey and Destiny's Child.

Pryce, a Pro Bowl selection each of the last two years, has musical aspirations of his own.

Inspired by reggae icon Bob Marley and hip-hop pioneers Public Enemy, Pryce has been mixing beats for years and enjoys nothing more than using his computer to blend guitar chords with the sounds from his keyboard drum machines.

DJ Pryce in the house.

"I'm never bored," he said Sunday while visiting with Lujan after Denver's morning practice. "I haven't touched my equipment now in probably two months, but it gives me a release like you wouldn't believe."

As a teen-ager, Pryce said he enjoyed creating an intense brand of hip-hop that sounded like "slowed-down death metal."

Several years later, he is still pursuing the perfect bass line and hopes to eventually release an instrumental CD along the lines of electronic musicians Moby and Fat Boy Slim.

"It's going to come out one day," Pryce said. "I've been telling people it's going to come out now for the last four years but it's nowhere near done. I keep redoing it. That's what's making it last so long."

With a new seven-year, $60 million contract, Pryce's music career will play second fiddle to football as he anchors a Denver defense that was often out of harmony last season.

Pryce had 12 sacks in 2000 but got little support as the Broncos finished 24th in total defense.

Pryce is the highest paid defensive lineman in NFL history and has been a two-time Super Bowl Champion and Pro Bowl Selection.

Pryce was All-ACC at Clemson in 1996 before being drafted in the first round (28th pick) of the 1997 draft by the Denver Broncos.

"Last year was a complete failure," Pryce said.

In response, Ray Rhodes was hired as the team's new defensive coordinator and Denver also signed veterans Chester McGlockton and Leon Lett in hopes of creating a better pass rush.

"I think they made some great additions," Pryce said. "They've taken a lot of pressure off of me — a lot. I do feel pressure. You all may not think I do, but I do. Every once in a while I feel the pressure of my head about to bust."

Never was the pressure higher than a year ago when Pryce missed the first week of training camp because of a contract dispute. He returned without a new deal but followed up his All-Pro 1999 season with another strong year.

"He's probably one of the most talented defensive players that I have been around in a long time," said McGlockton, who went to four straight Pro Bowls from 1994 to 1997. "Even in my younger years, he is better now than I was at the same stage in my career."

Entering his fifth season, Pryce said life in the NFL is getting easier. He no longer loses sleep worrying about the next day's practice, and he works more on fine-tuning his game than overhauling it.

"There's not much left to learn after you've taken in so much information," he said. "You might learn something new here or there, but there's no big learning curve anymore. I'm completely past that. It's a lot, lot easier and I can enjoy that."

Though his best years may be yet to come, Pryce already has grand plans for life after the NFL.

Not only would he like to see his CDs on music store shelves, he says he would like to be president of Sony.

"If I'm vice president of Sony, that would be OK, too."

Strength Training

Clemson fans look forward to seeing tough, hard-nosed football when they come to Death Valley or travel to other schools to watch their Tigers in action. But some of the Tigers' most intense competition and action doesn't take place on autumn Saturday's and it doesn't take place on a field. Take a peek into the Clemson Strength Training Room at almost any time of day, almost any day of the week, at any time of the year, and you will see the Tigers building the foundation for their pursuit of a championship.

Perhaps the most impressive characteristic of the facility is its size. Several years ago, it was enlarged to an astounding 11,000 square feet, making it one of the largest in the nation. In 1998, it was expanded to 14,000 square feet. The facility boasts two full lines of Nautilus machines and over 12 tons of weights. The large number of machines and free weights allows the weight room to be used by athletes from several other sports at the same time, without anyone having to wait in line at a particular station.

Within the last two years the dumbbell area and leg development areas were expanded as well as the nutrition and hydration area known as the Power Station. The Power Station features the energy and recovery drink to aid each athlete's recovery from intense training.

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place in the facility. When an athlete enters the etched glass doors, he is greeted by plush, wall-to-wall carpeting, walls lined with mirrors, ceiling fans, and music from a 26-speaker sound system - a worthy backdrop for well over $500,000 worth of state-of-the-art equipment.

Color television monitors are also positioned throughout the facility. These monitors are used for training and instruction, as Tiger strength coaches film the athletes and work with them on form correction.

The large staff of four full-time strength coaches, four graduate assistants, numerous student assistants, and volunteers ensures that each football player receives proper instruction on the fundamentals of strength and speed development. Training programs at Clemson are position specific and designed to meet the needs and demands of each athlete. Also, each position is appointed a full-time strength coach that serves as a personal trainer for that particular athlete throughout his career.

Hard core training and competition in the weight room and the annual Ironman Classic will help each athlete reach optimal levels in strength and speed development. The Tiger Strength Training and Nutrition Program help each athlete to become a complete player.

Vickery Hall

Vickery Hall

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided its student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success (C.A.T.S.) not only in the athletic arena but in the academic, personal growth, career, and service arenas as well. As an original member of the NCAA Life Skills/CHAMPS Program, we provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes in the years during college and after graduation.

C.A.T.S. Coaching Athletes To Success

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 19 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletics Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and was the first support facility in the country built solely for the all-around education of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes.

The mission of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is to monitor, guide, and encourage student-athletes to fulfill their long-term goals, and to achieve their academic and career potential.

Vickery Hall focuses on five primary areas to meet the student-athlete's needs.

ACADEMIC COMMITMENT

The academic commitment aspect of Clemson's Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation.

Clemson's student-athletes had a 2.80 GPA for the spring semester in 2001, the highest overall GPA on record. The overall student body had a 2.82, and the 0.02 margin between the student-athletes and the overall student population was the smallest differential on record. A record 28 student-athletes were named to the President's List (a perfect 4.0) and a record 97 student-athletes made the dean's list for the spring semester of 2001. Overall, 215 student-athletes had a 3.0 GPA or better, nearly 50 percent of the 441 student-athletes in the 19 varsity programs at Clemson.

A total of seven teams posted GPAs over 3.0 in the spring semester of 2001, the most in school history for a single semester. Six programs posted all-time highs for semester GPA, including the football, men's soccer, women's soccer, men's swimming, women's swimming and rowing teams.

The Clemson football team had a 2.58 team GPA in the spring, significantly ahead of the previous high of 2.49 set in the spring semester of 2000. Tommy Bowden has been the head coach at Clemson for five semesters and his team has had five of the top six semesters on record. Thirty-seven Clemson football players made the academic honor roll, the high total among Clemson teams for the semester.

The Academic Counselors perform a variety of duties to track academic progress. These duties include providing assistance in registration and priority scheduling, contacting faculty, personally checking classes, recording information, counseling sessions with student-athletes, providing diagnostic testing, and directing career aspirations.

One of the most prestigious programs that has received recognition essential to the growth of Vickery Hall is the tutorial program.

Of the 160 programs certified by CRLA, the Clemson Student-Athlete Enrichment Program was one of the first three student-athlete programs in the country to be granted a Level 1 certification from the College of Reading and Learning Association, International Tutor Certification Program. The program was also honored with the National Champs Skills Excellence Award in 1999, one of six schools from across the country to be honored.

Having tutor certification allows student-athletes to be provided the highest quality of academic assistance possible. Approximately 80 tutors are hired to provide academic support in the many subject areas offered.

Many post-graduate scholarships and internships are also available to student-athletes continuing their education through postgraduate studies. Our student-athletes are provided timely information regarding these opportunities and the resources necessary to assist in the application process for either scholarships or internships.

The Dick Hendley Computer Lab is one of the areas of Vickery Hall that make it one of the top facilities of its kind, nationally.

Vickery Hall

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to provide the student-athletes at Clemson with one of the largest computer labs in the country. Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Microcomputer Laboratory. The lab is open seven days a week, for 16 hours on Monday through Thursday, and a limited time on Saturday and Sunday. During exam periods the lab hours are extended.

The lab staff has a full-time computer manager, and also graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course, as well as the many management, engineering, and business courses that deal with personal computers.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is committed to providing state-of-the-art computing facilities. New computers have recently been purchased bringing the lab to a state of the art facility. More than 50 computers are available for student-athletes.

All computers are fully connected to the internet allowing for access of computers throughout the world for research and communication.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

One of the most important programs that helps student-athletes reach their full potential and engage successfully in this college experience is the Personal Growth and Development Program.

One of the key components of this program is the first-semester freshman transition class designed to assist the student-athlete in making a successful transition into his/her university and athletic life. All first-semester freshmen attend a semester-long series of workshops targeting the transitional issues of time management, organizational strategies, health and wellness issues, athletic issues, diversity issues, career orientation, and service training. Throughout the academic year, all student-athletes are required to attend four large-group programs, which focus on pertinent social, health, and athletic issues.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

The Career Assistance Program provides student-athletes an opportunity to fulfill career aspirations by participating in various career seminars offered by the staff at Vickery Hall. The philosophy of this program is to provide student-athletes with job-searching skills and strategies, internships, practical experience, and summer employment. These programs are designed to address specific career opportunities and acquire information about the student-athletes for each year.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center, and the Athletic Department, the staff is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athletes with job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Career Assistance Program is coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and focuses on resume writing and interview techniques.

SERVICE COMMITMENT

Providing community and outreach service to student-athletes and the surrounding community by engaging the student-athletes in hands-on interactive programs is an important aspect of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs. The staff of SAEP coordinates various activities each year to engage student-athletes in community outreach projects along with academic programs.

Another aspect of the service commitment is that of community service. The purpose of community service is to allow the student-athletes to become involved with the happenings of the community while giving back at the same time. Each year every team is required to perform at least two community outreach projects. Recently implemented was a new community service program entitled Success Away From the Game. The purpose of this program is to combine athletes of different sports in community outreach programs. By doing this, each outreach program participates, thus creating a diverse group of athletes with new and different ideas. At the end of each year, six student-athletes who have demonstrated outstanding commitment and contributions to the community are recognized as the Top 6 by the ACC.

LIFELine, another aspect of community service, consists of chosen football players who work together in specific community outreach projects. LIFELine has approximately 20 members along with a president, vice president and secretary. Once a month, these young men meet to discuss future projects. To date, they have sponsored Hi-Five Day, planted a garden at Helping Hands Children Shelter, and held reading programs at elementary schools. These young men have vital roles in both the community and the athletic arena.

To assist our student-athletes in becoming effective service leaders and communicators we provide service and speaking training, which anticipates the demands placed on a student-athlete when he/she might be speaking with a group of young people or also speaking with the media.

ATHLETIC COMMITMENT

Under the direction of athletic director Bobby Robinson, Clemson is undoubtedly one of the elite programs of Division I athletics.

With a generous funding base from Clemson's booster organization, IPTAY, and the forward-thinking of our athletic administration, the Clemson Tigers will continue to be a dominating athletic force, not only in the ACC, but nationally as well.

CLEMSON COMEBACKS

Last year Clemson overcame a 17-point deficit to defeat North Carolina in Chapel Hill. The victory allowed Clemson to run its record to 8-0. Clemson has overcome a 10-point or larger deficit to gain a victory or tie 18 times in its history. It is interesting to note that five of the top six have taken place on the road. The Clemson record for points overcome for victory is 28, set at Virginia in 1992. It is also the ACC record involving two conference schools. Maryland holds the record for a non-conference game with a 31-point comeback victory at Miami (FL) in 1984.

Sports Year In Review

The men's basketball team defeated #1 ranked North Carolina in February, ending the nation's longest win streak at 18 games. It marked the second time in school history that Clemson had upset the nation's top-ranked team.

- The Clemson sports program had 11 teams rank in the final top 25, the university's highest number of top 25 teams since the 1991-92 academic year when a record 13 teams finished in the top 25. Overall, it tied for the third highest number of top 25 finishes in Clemson history.

- Clemson had 31 All-Americans in 2000-01, its second highest single year total on record. The 39 achieved in 1998-99 is the only figure that is higher for one year.

- The program could boast of 70 All-ACC selections, the highest total since 1989-90 when a record 82 athletes made All-ACC. The total reached in 2000-01 is the second highest total in school history.

- Clemson upset the nation's top ranked team in two different sports during the 2000-01 academic year. The Lady Tiger soccer team defeated a #1 ranked and eventual national champion North Carolina team by a 2-1 score in October at Clemson. The Clemson men's basketball team upset a #1 ranked North Carolina team that had won 18 straight games in February. It was just the third academic year in Clemson history that the school had wins over top ranked teams in two different sports.

- Clemson had another strong performance in spring sports as four teams ranked in the top 25 in the nation in their respective final polls. The golf team finished second to tie for its highest finish ever, while the women's track team was seventh, its highest outdoor track ranking. The baseball team advanced to the Super Regionals and ranked 13th in the final poll. The rowing team, in just its third year of existence, ranked 21st in the final poll.

- Clemson had at least two All-ACC performers on 14 of its 19 teams, while nine different teams had at least two All-Americans.

- Twelve of Clemson's 19 teams participated in post-season play and six different teams that compete in dual match or game competition upset at least one top 25 team.

- Clemson was one of the dominant programs in the nation when it came to soccer. Both programs ranked in the top 10 in the nation, one of just three programs nationally to make that claim. The men advanced to the Sweet 16, while the women advanced to the Elite Eight. Both teams played host to the NCAA Tournament.

- Clemson had the ACC Performer of the Year in three of the four league track meets during 2000-01. Cyndonie Mothersill was the ACC Track Performer of the year at the ACC outdoor meet, while Jamine Moton was the MVP of the indoor meet. Jacey Harper was the MVP of the Indoor track meet on the men's side.

- Three coaches in three different sports were named ACC Coach of the Year in 2000-01. The list included Susie Lueck (rowing), Bob Pollock (Indoor track) and Ray Leone (women's soccer).

IPTAY ENDOWMENT PROGRAM

IPTAY is widely regarded nationally as the father of Athletic Fundraising. It all started in 1934 and from a private meeting of a small group of Clemson supporters has sprung into an organization that raised a record $10 million last year. The organization plays a major role in ensuring that all 19 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships offered by the NCAA.

The organization also has helped finance facilities that contribute to the well-being of student-athletes on and off the field. Vickery Hall is a 27,000 square foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. It is a major reason Clemson student-athletes have had their highest cumulative GPA on record for five consecutive semesters.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson, currently helping more than 40 students at Clemson.

IPTAY Executive Director George Bennett has continued to keep Clemson among the best in the nation in terms of fund-raising by the establishment of the IPTAY Endowment Program. In April of 1994, he kicked off the beginning of the endowment of positions program at the 85th birthday celebration for former Clemson Coach Frank Howard. The endowments are secure with a $100,000 donation paid over a five-year period.

"This is a chance to broaden the horizons of IPTAY," said Bennett. "It gives an individual or a group of people an opportunity to endow a position that meant something during their college days, or to honor a person at a position. The money being endowed is going to secure our future as the interest is used to carry on our program forever.

The first endowment was for the head football coach position to honor the legendary Frank Howard. Howard coached football at Clemson 39 years, 30 as the head coach. During his tenure the Tigers won 165 games, 100 of which were against conference foes. "Former players and friends of Coach Howard made donations over the cost of attending the celebration program and that was enough for the endowment. Their gifts were a way of permanently thanking Coach Howard for all that he did for Clemson.

"Following Coach Howard's birthday party we began to look for an individual to help us support and promote the program and Bill Hudson's name came up. He was an outstanding player at Clemson who has been equally successful in the business world. We went to him and explained the program and its goals and that we were looking for his leadership to help get the program going, and he accepted."

Hudson, a 1956 graduate, was a three-year letter winner at tackle who played professionally for the Montreal Alouettes, the San Diego Chargers, and the Boston Patriots. He earned Pro Bowl honors in 1962. Mr. Hudson sees this program growing into a large part of Clemson's athletic funding. "When other people see information on the endowment program and learn what it is about this program will grow. Success builds on success. People who are looking to honor a friend or family member now have a great means to do that."

Besides the Hudson's family endowment four other football endowments were made and one managers position in the first year. Now there are more than 90 positions endowed. The goal of the program is to get every position endowed. "From the free safety to the number-three player in women's tennis, we hope to have every position endowed," said Bennett.

"We will likely use the Avenue of Champions as a physical place to honor these people further for the positions they have endowed. That will have plenty of space, so we will be working to have as many endowments across all of our sports.

"The personal satisfaction that they helped Clemson University, specifically the Athletic department, and that they are securing its future are the main reasons for becoming involved."

And with more involvement Clemson will have a very secure future for generations to come.

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties supplies Tiger fans with a full day of broadcasts each Clemson football Saturday. Each broadcast day has three shows, "Countdown to Kickoff," "Game Day Broadcast," and the "Football Final."

A Clemson tradition since the mid-seventies, Countdown to Kickoff is a 90-minute entertainment and interactive program produced live from the lawn at Littlejohn Coliseum at the corner closest to Death Valley. The show begins two hours prior to kickoff. Popular Greenville entertainers Love & Hudson, play host to the show that is attended by thousands of Clemson fans. Interviews, games, display items and pre-game excitement are all part of the show that has become a part of the game-day excitement at Death Valley.

The Game Day Broadcast features long-time voice of the Tigers Jim Phillips. A legendary figure in Clemson sports, Phillips is in his 34th year providing play-by-play for Clemson sports. A high percentage of Clemson fans have never heard anyone else broadcast a Clemson football game. He is one of the most respected broadcasters in the country.

Joining Phillips on the broadcast are former Clemson Hall of Fame quarterbacks Mike Eppley and Rodney Williams. Eppley was an All-ACC quarterback for the Tigers between 1980-84, while Williams led the Tigers to a record 32 victories, including bowl wins over Stanford, Penn State and Oklahoma, as a starting signal caller between 1985-88.

The Game Day broadcast begins 30 minutes prior to each game. Coach Tommy Bowden's pre-game thoughts are heard during the opening segment as well as scene setters from around the ACC and the nation. Eppley, Williams and Phillips, who have followed Clemson football for a combined 70 years also provide their pre-game analysis.

After the game, noted upstate television sports personality Pete Yanity will play host to the Football Final. Fans can hear coach Bowden as well as selected players comment on that day's game. Reports also will be presented from important games from around the ACC and the nation.

In addition to the Saturday broadcasts, fans can also follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls, a one hour program with Coach Bowden and Jim Phillips each Thursday evening. The show runs from August 30 to November 19.

A Road Map for Academic Excellence

CLEMSON

FOOD FOR THOUGHT — GENOMICS

Building the University's research environment is a key component of Clemson's plan to become one of the nation's top-20 public universities. In designing a "road map to the top 20," the University hopes to build strong research programs in areas that can generate significant outside funding as well as enhance the educational experience. One such program is genomics.

Vitamin-enriched crops, such as rice, could prevent blindness for millions of people in the developing world and reduce the impact of heart disease or cancer. Fuels, chemicals and plastics could be produced from renewable plant resources instead of diminishing fossil fuel supplies.

It's all in the foreseeable future as Clemson researchers join scientists around the world in exploring "genomics" — molecular genetics.

Scientists at the University's Genomics Institute are analyzing the genetic make-up of corn, rice, cotton and others, as well as the insects and diseases that threaten these crops. They are creating libraries of genetic materials needed to understand the molecular biology of plants in order to make them better.

Clemson's Genomics Institute is a key force in preserving our natural resources and improving the quality of life around the world. For more information about genomics, visit www.genome.clemson.edu.

RICK ARONBERG

Men's Swimming, 1986-90

If the test of time marks the greatness of an athlete, then Rick Aronberg is undoubtedly one of the best distance swimmers in Clemson history. Of the five school records he set from 1985-90, four still stand today, more than a decade later.

Aronberg dominated the freestyle distance swimming events like no other Tiger, winning six ACC championships and four All-America awards. After claiming 20 pool records at Fairport High School in Fairport, NY, Aronberg continued his domination at the college level. He won his first ACC Championship in the 1,650 freestyle and would go on to win the event three more times. Aronberg is the only Clemson swimmer to win four ACC titles in the same event. He also became a two-time ACC Champion in the 500 freestyle.

Aronberg was a familiar face in the national and international swimming world. He did not compete with the Tigers during the 1987-88 year because he was training for the Olympics Games and he was an Olympic Trial qualifier in the 400, 800 and 1,500 freestyle events. He participated in the 1989 Maccabiah Games and won five gold medals and one silver medal. Combined with the five gold medals and one bronze medal he won in 1985, Aronberg became the Maccabiah Games' all-time medal winner, surpassing Mark Spitz.

The four-time All-ACC performer set two ACC records in 1989 while winning the 1,650 and 500 titles. He still holds Clemson records for the 500, 1,000, 1,650 and 800 freestyle relay events while his fifth record, in the 200 freestyle, was broken by .05 seconds. With a record like that, one can see why Rick Aronberg is considered one of Clemson's best.

JILL BAKEHORN

Women's Swimming, 1986-90

Jill Bakehorn was an All-American girl. In fact, she was an All-American girl 15 times during her career at Clemson from 1986-90. Bakehorn excelled in the 100 back, 200 back and the 200 IM, setting school records in all three categories. She was also invited to the Olympic Trials of all three events in 1988.

The Lexington, KY, native began her career as an All-ACC swimmer in 1987, when she was the second leading dual meet scorer for the Lady Tigers.

She broke out her sophomore season, when she qualified for the NCAA Championships and the Olympic Trials in the 100 back, 200 back and 200 IM. She was named All-American for the 100 back, 200 back and 200 IM and placed third in the 100 back at the NCAA Championships.

The success continued in 1989 with a fifth-place finish in the 100 back and eighth-place finish in the 200 back at the NCAA Championships. She also swam the lead-off leg of the sixth-place 200 medley team and was a member of the honorable mention All-American 300 medley and 300 freestyle relays.

She was a five-time ACC Champion in 1989 in her three individual events plus the 200 and 400 medley relays. Bakehorn capped her career in 1990 with ACC Championships in both backstroke events.

BILL FOSTER

Men's Basketball Coach, 1975-84

The man who put Clemson basketball on the map in the modern era was Bill Foster, who coached the Tigers from 1975-84. Before he arrived, the program had participated in the NCAA or NIT tournament only once. But Foster guided the Tigers to four straight appearances and all but one of his teams had at least a .500 record.

He is the second winningest coach in Clemson history on a percentage basis with a .595 figure. He is tied for the most top-20 wins in Clemson history and won a record 13 games in overtime. One of those wins was a landmark 87-82 win over Duke during the 1979-80 season. It was the program's first win against a team ranked number one in the nation and it came in front of a Littlejohn record crowd of 13,500.

Foster set the tone for his stint at Clemson during his first season with road victories over the nation's number two and number five teams. The Tigers finished with an 18-10 record that year and set 17 school records.

Foster led Clemson to a 22-6 record in 1976-77 and a 20-11 mark in 1980-81.

But his best season, and one of the school's best, was the 1979-80 campaign. He led the Tigers to a 23-9 record and the Final Eight of the NCAA Tournament, which is the farthest any Clemson team has advanced in the history of the NCAA Tournament. The team went 15-0 at home that season and defeated six top-20 teams, still a record for ranked wins.

Foster went on to success at Miami (FL) and Virginia Tech before retiring after the 1996-97 season with 532 wins.

Foster helped build the program's reputation in more ways than one. Perhaps the Hemmingway, SC, native's best statistic was his graduation rate, which was better than 80 percent. Both on the court and off, Foster took Clemson basketball to new heights.

2001 Clemson Hall of Fame

CHRIS GARDOCKI
Football, 1988-90

One of the greatest kickers in Clemson history is undoubtedly Chris Gardocki. The left-footed kicker and punter was a prolific specialist who was named the 19th greatest football player in school history and selected to Clemson's Centennial team in April 1996.

Gardocki set new standards for placekicking. He tied the ACC record for longest field goal with his 57-yarder against Appalachian State in 1990 and set a conference mark with 107 points off of kicks during the 1989 season. He never missed a PAT attempt at Clemson and holds the record with 72 consecutive conversions. He also tied Obed Ariri's career total for field goals with 63 thanks to 20 multiple field goal games throughout his career. Included in that total is a pair of four-field-goal games in 1990.

The Stone Mountain, GA, native was named a third-team All-American as a sophomore and a second-team choice as a junior for his placekicking, but Gardocki was also a great punter. He was named an honorable mention All-American punter by UPI every season he was at Clemson. In his junior season, Gardocki ranked fourth in the nation in punting while also tying for fourth in placekicking. He is just the second player to finish in the top 10 in both categories in the same season but is the first player to do it twice.

Gardocki accomplished all of the feats in just three years at the school. He applied for the NFL Draft after his junior season, a rarity for a kicker, and was drafted in the third round by the Chicago Bears.

Today he is one of the top punters in the NFL with the Cleveland Browns. Now in his 11th year in the league, he has had an NFL record 726 career punts without a block. He has ranked in the top five in the NFL in punting each of the last five years, including 1996 when he was named to the Pro Bowl.

MICHAEL GREEN
Men's Track, 1990-93

The storied tradition of the Clemson men's track program would not be what it is today without the exploits of Michael Green, one of the top sprinters in school history.

Green came to Clemson in 1990 from Falmouth, Jamaica, where he competed on the Jamaican National Junior Team that set a national record. Green set five school marks during his time at Clemson, four of which still stand today. He would leave in 1993 as a six-time All-American, nine-time ACC Champion and Clemson's first three-time NCAA National Champion. Green helped take the program to a new level in 1993 as part of the most successful senior class in school history. Green was named meet MVP of both the ACC indoor and outdoor Championships that season after winning ACC championships in the 55m, 100m, 200m indoor, 200m outdoor and as a member of the 4x100m relay team.

He followed his performances on the national stage by winning the NCAA championship in both the 55m and 100m. Green helped lead the team to a second-place finish at the NCAA indoor championships and a tie for 10th at the NCAA outdoor championships.

Those titles were part of Green's career-long success in the ACC, where he won six individual titles and three relay titles. Clemson won all but one ACC team title during Green's tenure.

Green won the NCAA indoor championship in the 55m with a time of 6.08. The time was the fastest in the world in 1992 and remains the fastest in school history. Green also represented Jamaica in the 1992 Olympics in the 100m and 4x100m relay team. Green showed he was more than just an athlete by posting a 3.73 GPA in the spring of 1992 in agricultural economics. In fact he turned down academic scholarship offers from other schools to excel on both the track and the classroom at Clemson.

LISA DILLARD-HANKS
Women's Track, 1988-91

When the women's track program started at Clemson in 1979, it gradually became competitive by building up a solid corps of distance runners. When Lisa Dillard became a Tiger in 1988, she would prove that the program could flourish in areas other than distance running. Dillard became the first non-distance All-American in the history of the Clemson women's track program in 1990 when she placed fifth in the 55m at the NCAA indoor championships. She would go on that season to win All-America honors in the 100m outdoor and 200m outdoor events and then the 4x100m outdoor relay in 1991.

But Dillard's accomplishments don't stop there. After transferring from Christopher Newport College and sitting out the 1988 season, she burst onto the scene in 1989 by setting five individual school records and aiding in five relay marks. She set a conference record when she won the ACC Championship in the 55m with a time of 6.89. Dillard capped her first year with ACC Championships in the 100m and 200m.

The 1990 season would be even better for Dillard as she collected ACC titles in the 55m (where she broke her own conference record), 100m, 200m and 4x100m relay events in addition to her first All-America awards. She placed fifth in the 55m at the NCAA indoor championships, fourth in the 100m and seventh in the 200m at the NCAA Outdoor Championships. For her efforts she was named the IPTAY Athlete-of-the-Year for 1989-90 and was nominated for the Mary Garber Award, which honors the top female athlete in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Dillard completed her career in 1991 with an ACC Championship as a member of the 4x100m relay team and a fifth-place finish at the NCAA outdoor championships. All told, Dillard won six individual ACC championships, two with relay teams, four All-America awards and had a part in five school records when she graduated with a degree in PRTM.

2001 Clemson Hall of Fame

LEVON KIRKLAND
Football, 1988-91

No discussion of the great linebacker tradition at Clemson would be complete without Levon Kirkland. The Lamar, SC, native's selection to the Hall of Fame is not the first time he has been honored among the school's legends. He was named to Clemson's Centennial team in 1996 and was ranked as the number eight football player of all-time by a panel of Clemson historians in 1999.

It didn't take long after he arrived on campus in 1987 for Kirkland to start making an impact. After redshirting a year, Kirkland ranked fifth in tackles on the 1988 team that went 10-2 and defeated Oklahoma in the Citrus Bowl.

In 1989 Kirkland burst onto the scene with his constant harassment of All-America West Virginia quarterback Major Harris in the Gator Bowl to cap off a first team All-ACC season. He was a finalist for the Butkus Award and a second team UPI All-American in 1990 on one of the top defenses in Clemson history, a unit that ranked first in the country in total defense. Kirkland finished his days as a Tiger in 1991 and was named a first-team All-American according to Kodak/AFCA, Sporting News, Scripps Howard and Walter Camp.

He left Clemson ranked among the leaders in several statistical categories. He is sixth in Clemson history in career sacks with 19 and eighth in career tackles for a loss with 40. He is also tied with William Perry for second in career fumble recoveries with seven. He also played 48 straight games at Clemson, a linebacker record 43 as a starter.

Today, Kirkland is a starting linebacker for the Seattle Seahawks. He played nine years with the Steelers, serving as team captain the last six. He has been named to the Pro Bowl twice and enters this year with 904 career tackles.

RICHARD MATUSZEWSKI
Men's Tennis, 1983-86

It would be hard to argue Richard Matuszewski's selection to the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame. As the only four-time All-American in the history of the men's tennis program, he stands at the head of the class.

Matuszewski came into Chuck Kriese's program from Hopewell Junction, NY, in the fall of 1982 ranked 14th on the team, but he would not settle for mediocrity. He won 13 of 16 matches that year after becoming a starter, including a team-high nine-match winning streak. He was the only freshman to win a flight at the ACC tournament when he cleaned up at the number six singles spot.

The success continued his sophomore season when he won the ACC Championship at number five singles. He ended the year with 50 victories, becoming only the second Tiger to win 50 in one season and compiled a record of 20-1 against Region II opponents.

Matuszewski took off even further in 1985. He paired with Brandon Walters to win the ITCA National Indoor Doubles Championship, Clemson's first national championship in men's tennis. The duo also won the No. 1 ACC doubles crown and finished the year ranked fourth in the nation. Individually, Matuszewski registered the team's best record against Region II competition by going 28-5.

Matuszewski capped his Clemson career in grand fashion his senior year with a 41-17 record. He won his third ACC Championship in singles and reached the quarterfinals of the NCAA Tournament. In the final ITA Collegiate Poll, Matuszewski ranked 12th in singles and eighth along with Brandon Walters in doubles. Matuszewski's stellar play spread to his teammates and they led the team to glory. The Tigers finished the year ranked fifth in the final ITA Collegiate Poll and won the ACC Tournament Championship after an undefeated regular season in the conference.

BOBBIE MIMS-FELDER
Women's Basketball, 1976-80

For a basketball team to succeed, players need to take on a variety of roles. As point guard, it would appear that Bobbie Mims found the role of giving just fine.

The Bowman, S.C. native holds the Clemson record for assists with 617 and is second in assists per game with a 4.89 average. She once dished out 12 assists in one of the 126 games she played, one game short of the Clemson career record.

But to limit a description of Mims to her assist excellence just wouldn't be right. That's because she left Clemson as the school's all-time leading scorer and currently stands seventh on the list. She scored a career-high 25 points against North Carolina and once shot 9 for 9 from the field against Lander College. So it would be safe to call Mims a double threat, right?

Even that would be an incorrect analysis. Mims didn't mind doing the dirty work, averaging more than five rebounds a game during her career. She is ninth on the school's career rebounding list with 630. Durability was not a problem either as she started a school record 121 games. Defense was not a liability for Mims, who ranks fifth all-time with 224 steals and sixth with a 1.77 steals per game average. Throw in her 624 field goals made, and Mims currently ranks in the top 10 of nine categories.

She is also one of only six players in school history to score more than 1400 points and dish out 200 assists and one of 12 players at Clemson to score 1000 points and grab 500 rebounds.

Mims was a major reason Clemson's program won at least 20 games each of her four seasons, including 24 in 1980, a record that stood for 18 years.

Tiger Band

By Kevin Johnson

Every Saturday, Tiger Band marches into Death Valley and the football team runs down the hill. Every fan stands to cheer the football team as it makes its entrance as the "Band that Shakes the Southland" plays Tiger Rag. "The most exciting 25 seconds in college football" as the tradition has been referred to, would not be the same without the contribution of the Tiger Band.

Similarly, the Tiger Band would not be able to produce one of the top pre-game and halftime shows without a dedicated team of student staff.

The Tiger Band is comprised of some of the most talented and dedicated young men and women on the Clemson campus. The student leadership structure is unique among major college marching bands. Since Tiger Band does not have graduate assistants, which are found in most college bands, the student leaders are given more responsibilities in the day-to-day operations than students in most other college marching bands.

The Tiger Band student staff includes: Band Commander Wesley Moore, Vice-Commander Liz Saunders, Sergeant-Major Ryan Smith, Drum Majors Becky Graham, Heather Lott, Rebecca Poe and Lindsey Templeton, Uniform Officer Keith Brockington, Equipment Officer Gabe Felkel, Librarian Daugenet Breaux, Flag Captains Krissy Calabrese, Shannon Finnegan and Meredith Robillard, and Head Manager Rachel Paul.

Wesley Moore is in his first year as band commander, and his fifth year as a Tiger Band member. A member of the trumpet section, he is a native of Florence, SC and a graduate of West Florence H.S. Moore is a senior majoring in agricultural mechanization and will be dotting the "i" today during pre-game festivities.

Liz Saunders is in her first year as vice commander, and her fourth year as a Tiger Band member. A member of the horn section, she is a native of Marietta, GA and a graduate of Walton H.S. Saunders is a senior majoring in secondary education and English.

Keith Brockington is in his first year as uniform officer, and his fourth year as a Tiger Band member. A member of the trumpet section, he is a native of Alpharetta, GA and a graduate of Milton H.S. Brockington is a senior majoring in forest resource management.

Gabe Felkel is in his first year as equipment officer, and his fourth year as a Tiger Band member. A member of the sousaphone section, he is a native of Greenville, SC and a graduate of Riverside H.S. Felkel is a senior majoring in mechanical engineering.

Daugenet Breaux is in his first year as librarian, and his fourth year as a Tiger Band member. A member of the horn section, he is a native of Charleston, SC and a graduate of Middleton H.S. Breaux is a senior majoring in electrical engineering.

Becky Graham is in her third year as drum major, and her fourth year as a Tiger Band member. She is a native of Camden, SC and a graduate of Camden H.S. Graham is a senior majoring in nursing.

Heather Lott is in her first year as a drum major, and her third year as a Tiger Band member. She is a native of Greenville, SC and a graduate of Wade Hampton H.S. Lott is a junior majoring in secondary education and English.

Tiger Band Student Staff

Rebecca Poe is in her first year as a drum major, and her second year as a Tiger Band member. She is a native of Summerville, SC and a graduate of Summerville H.S. Rebecca is a sophomore majoring in speech and communication studies.

Lindsey Templeton is in her first year as drum major, and her second year as a Tiger Band member. She is a native of York, SC and a graduate of York Comprehensive H.S. Templeton is a sophomore majoring in mathematics teaching.

Krissy Calabrese is in her first year as flag captain, and her third year as a Tiger Band flag line member. She is a native of Mauldin, SC and a graduate of Mauldin H.S. Calabrese is a junior and majoring in textile science.

Shannon Finnegan is in her second year as flag captain, and her third year as a Tiger Band flag line Member. She is a native of Lawrenceville, GA and a graduate of Brookwood H.S. Finnegan is a junior majoring in secondary mathematics education.

Meredith Robillard is in her fourth year as a flag captain, and her fifth year as a Tiger Band flag line Member. She is a native of West Springfield, MA and a graduate of West Springfield H.S. Robillard is a senior majoring in ceramic and materials engineering.

Rachel Paul is in her first year as head manager and her second year as a Tiger Band member. She is a native of Florence, SC and a graduate of the West Florence H.S. Paul is a senior majoring in finance.

In addition to saluting the student staff of Tiger Band, today is Tiger Band Parents Day. Clemson would like to say a special "thank you" to all Tiger Band parents in attendance. Their support of, and interest in, the Clemson University Band Program is greatly appreciated!

Today's pregame musical selections are: "Orange Bowl March," "Tiger Rag," "Washington Post," "God Bless America," "Star-Spangled Banner," and "Alma Mater." As the Tigers enter Death Valley, the band will play "Orange Bowl March" and "Tiger Rag."

Tiger Band presents "Beatle Mania!" today for their halftime show. This salute to the Beatles will feature several of their number one hits. Music selections will include "She Loves You," "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band," "Day Tripper," "Ticket to Ride," "I Want to Hold Your Hand," "Can't Buy Me Love" and "Hey Jude."

Tiger Band's annual Pass-In-Review Concert will be on Thursday, Nov. 15 at 8:00 PM in the Brooks Theater.

Men's Golf

By Tim Bourret

The Clemson men's golf program has performed at a level unequaled by any Clemson athletic program in the last 22 years. Larry Penley's team has put together five consecutive top-10 finishes, including three in the top three since 1997, something that has not been done at Clemson since the men's soccer program had seven straight top-six finishes between 1973-79.

While many college golf observers think Penley has the program on autopilot, a return to the top 10 for a sixth straight year would be among his greatest coaching accomplishments. Clemson has been ranked in the top five in the nation for 62 consecutive MasterCard Collegiate polls dating to March 4, 1998.

Clemson has been ranked in the top seven for every poll each of the last four years. There were two common denominators in the Clemson lineup for those four years, Lucas Glover and John Engler. Penley has had to replace great players in recent years, Richard Coughlan after 1996-97, Charles Warren after 1997-98 and Jonathan Byrd after the 1999-00 season to name a few. But, he has not had to replace two first-team All-Americans in the same year, as he will have to do this year.

"You don't replace those guys," said Penley, who has taken Clemson to the NCAA national tournament 18 consecutive years. "Their leadership, work habits and scoring ability were incredible for the last four years. They established new levels of excellence in all areas. They left Clemson ranked as the top two stroke average players in our history."

Penley is quick to point out that replacing 2001 senior Jani Saari also won't be easy. Perhaps the greatest number-five player in Clemson history, Saari played in three NCAA national events and was a key to Clemson's top-10 finishes. His score counted in 11 of 12 NCAA national rounds.

While Penley must replace three starters for the first time since 1994, he will be the first to tell you that he does have a young, but talented team. "It is important that we play a lot of people early. We want the new players to gain some confidence early and build some momentum. We are not short on talent, we are short on experience."

Three players return from last year who played at least eight tournaments, so Penley is not devoid of experienced players. Leading the way are D.J. Trahan and Gregg Jones, starters for the Tigers in the NCAA Tournament last year, plus Ben Duncan, who played in eight tournaments and 23 rounds in 2000-01.

"D.J. and Gregg will lead the way early. They have been there in the NCAA Tournament. They are two good players to build our team around. They will bring stability to our team."

Trahan is listed as one of the top players in college golf entering his junior year. He had a 72.48 average a year ago as a sophomore, but was the top Tiger at the NCAA national tournament at Duke with a 283 score. He finished seventh individually, the second straight year he has been Clemson's top player at the national event and finished in the top 15.

Trahan won the 2000 United States Public Links championship and played in the 2001 Masters. He was also chosen to the United States Walker Cup team and enters this year as the fourth ranked amateur golfer by Golfweek. This past summer he finished third at the prestigious Porter Cup, was eighth at the Rice Planters and 14th at the Monroe Invitational.

"D.J. is a big-time player," said Penley. "The bigger the event the better he plays. He has been in the shadows as a freshman and sophomore from a leadership standpoint. But, he is now looking forward to that responsibility as a junior. The limelight will be on him and he is ready for it."

Jones had a 73.43 stroke average as a freshman, the fourth best in Clemson history for a rookie. Only Engler, Glover and Trahan have posted better freshman stroke averages. He finished the season on a high note, finishing 22nd at the ACC Tournament, 10th at the NCAA regional and 39th at the national tournament.

The son of parents who are both Clemson graduates continued his fine play this summer by winning the South Carolina Match Play for the second straight year, and the South Carolina Open. "Gregg got a taste of what it is like at the top last year with his NCAA experience at the end of the season. He knows what it takes from a work ethic standpoint to compete and he is willing to put in the time."

Duncan played in eight events as a sophomore and posted a 73.65 stroke average. His top performance was a 15th-place finish at The Schenkel. He also had a strong showing at the Ping Preview where he finished 29th in a strong field.

The only other Tiger on the 10-man roster who has played in a college tournament is Tripp James, the only senior on the Clemson team. The native of Spartanburg had a solid 225 total at the U.S. Collegiate in Mexico last year. He also showed improvement over the summer by finishing as a semifinalist at the South Carolina Match Play.

Matt Hendrix, Jack Ferguson and Michael Sims are three players who have red-shirted seasons at Clemson, but are yet to play in a college event. All three will vie for spots in the lineup this year.

Hendrix, a sophomore from Aiken, SC, showed the depth of the Clemson team at the US Amateur this past summer. He did not get into a tournament for the Tigers in 2001, yet finished 20th in the stroke play portion of the Amateur to qualify for match play. He also finished 11th at the Southeast Amateur and was 16th in the South Carolina Amateur.

Ferguson, a native of nearby Seneca, is a red-shirt freshman who will get an early look in 2001-02. He was runnerup to Jones at the South Carolina Match Play, finished fifth at the South Carolina Amateur, seventh at the Rice Planters and 10th at the Southern Amateur. He reminds many of Chris Patton when it comes to short game ability. Sims was a high school teammate of Trahan at Dorman High in Inman, SC and was a starter on two high school state championship teams.

D.J. Trahan, who competed in the 2001 Masters, will be the leader of a Clemson golf team seeking a sixth-straight top-10 national finish.

Three first-year freshmen will round out the Clemson roster for 2001-02. Don't be surprised if one of them breaks into the Tiger lineup. Penley played Glover and Engler when they were first-year freshmen. Martin Catalioto was a two-time Player of the Year in the state of New Jersey who qualified for the national stroke play portion of the U.S. Amateur last year.

Brian Duncan, brother of Tiger junior Ben Duncan, also will challenge for a spot in the Clemson lineup. The younger Duncan won the South Carolina State 3A Championship as a senior and was the 2000 Carolinas Golf Association Junior Champion. He reached the semifinals of the South Carolina Match Play this past summer and finished eighth at the South Carolina Amateur.

Stephen Poole, a native of Spartanburg, was the runnerup in the State 4A championship this year and won the 2000 Southern Cross Championship. He has many top five finishes in AJGA events in his career.

Tim Bourret is in his 13th year as the Clemson Sports Information Director.

Banks McFadden & Ace Parker

By Brent Bredin

This is the story behind the story of what college athletic programs seek but seldom find—the great competitor with talent to match. Duke found its first in 1933 in the form of Clarence (Ace) Parker. Clemson matched the “find” three years later in Banks McFadden. Almost unarguably, they remain some 65 years later the ultimate sports heroes of their respective schools.

The Clemson vs. Duke series is testimony to the positive effect each player had on its respective team. In the 1934-36 series, Duke dominated behind Parker, who was a consensus All-American in his senior year in leading Duke to a 9-1 record and an 11th-place finish in the first ever Associated Press annual poll in 1936. Parker also stood out as a sophomore and junior as Duke compiled 7-2 and 8-2 marks. In the Blue Devils’ three wins over Clemson, the combined scores were, 83-18.

All McFadden could do was watch 65 years ago as super star Parker stole the show. He was an end on the Clemson freshman team. But in his three years as a varsity player, 1937-39, he led the Tigers to two winning seasons (7-1-1 and 9-1) after a 4-4 sophomore year. In 1939, Clemson finished #12 in the AP poll, beat favorite Boston College in the Cotton Bowl, and McFadden became Clemson’s first AP All-American and was the fourth pick of the NFL draft. We are pleased that he is still following the Tigers today and will soon have his 85th birthday. But now for the rest of the story.

In the first quarter of the 20th century, college football was dominated by the Ivy League schools. But soon the South got serious about the game. Enter a young Tennessean named Wallace Wade, seven years out of Brown University, to take over the coaching reins at Alabama in 1923. One of his assistants from Augusta, GA, a former standout from Vanderbilt, was Russell Cohen. In early 1927, Coach Cohen, while scouting a player in Mobile, AL, met a graduating Murphy High senior named Frank Howard and helped him get a just-vacated academic scholarship to Alabama in the fall.

Howard’s play as a freshman earned him an athletic scholarship in 1928, just in time to tell his friend Cohen goodbye as he took over the head coaching reins at LSU. Taking Cohen’s place was another soft-spoken Tennessean, Jess Neely, only four years out of Vanderbilt but with four years of head coaching experience at Southwestern (now Rhodes College). Chief assistant Neely and standout guard Howard played key roles as Alabama earned another shared mythical national championship in 1930 with a 10-0 record, including a 24-0 victory over Washington State in the Rose Bowl.

The Carolinas had been relatively void of outstanding football entering the decade of the 1930s. Impressed by Alabama’s winning ways, on-the-make Duke sought out Wallace Wade, with his three national titles in the past six years, and Clemson hired Neely. Howard, only days after Alabama commencement, joined Neely on the Clemson coaching staff. Finding what the pros today call “franchise players” was high on the agendas of the new coaches. Wade found Parker in Portsmouth, VA, in 1933, and Neely located McFadden in Great Falls, SC, in 1936.

Ironically, Parker and McFadden — though highly talented in football — were considered even more promising athletically in baseball and basketball, respectively. Ace was a prodigy of Duke’s relatively new baseball coach, Jack Coombs. Connie Mack and the Philadelphia A’s signed Parker to a contract upon his completing his eligibility at Duke in April of 1937, and a few days later he was in the Athletics’ starting lineup at shortstop But in the falls of 1937-39 he was starting tailback for the NFL’s Brooklyn Dodgers.

McFadden, a 6-3 string bean, was more comfortable on the basketball court than the gridiron. He was All-Southern in each of his three varsity years at Clemson and All-American in his 1938-39 junior season. His varsity football years of 1937 and 1938 were solid but had netted him no honors—not even all-state recognition. But this would change two weeks after his All-America play had led Clemson to four upset wins and its first (and only) Southern Conference basketball tournament title. Neely, let McFadden celebrate Sunday following his court triumph but had him working out in shorts with the football team on Monday. Later in the spring, Neely instructed McFadden to accompany the football team to Durham to play a then-allowed intercollegiate spring game against Coach Wallace Wade’s powerful Blue Devils — the nation’s number three-ranked team in 1938.

Though scheduled to observe, rather than play, McFadden was inserted in the Clemson lineup early on and played the game of a lifetime. His running, passing, punting, and pass defense in the first half enabled the Tigers to earn a 20-13 lead. And, though Duke won the scrimmage McFadden had established himself as someone to watch in 1939. Wade, in particular, was impressed and was quoted widely in the sports press on the subject. And so with all the tailback responsibilities on his shoulders, he more than doubled, in 1939, his combined total offense of 1937 and 1938.

First draft pick of the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1940, McFadden teamed with Parker, who had led the Dodgers in total offense three years in a row. They together sparked Brooklyn to its finest record ever — eight wins and three losses — with Parker winning the NFL’s most valuable player award, and McFadden leading the league in rushing and total offense, averages of 6.3 per carry and 7.5 yards per offensive play. Both played phenomenal defense.

An automobile accident, followed by World War II, ended Banks’ professional career. He rejoined Coach Howard’s football staff in the fall of 1945 and began an 11-year run as Clemson’s head basketball coach (1946-56). Parker would join Coach Wade’s football staff in the late 1940s and stayed on as successor Bill Murray’s offensive backfield coach through the 1960s — at the same time serving as Duke baseball coach following Jack Coombs retirement in 1951. It was Parker’s pass offense against McFadden’s pass defense during a decade of meetings after the ACC was formed. As for Russ Cohen, from 1947-54, he lent a helping hand to friend Frank Howard in coaching Clemson’s pass defense at a critical time in his young career, then turning it over to Banks in 1955.

When Clemson and Duke began their “Sports Halls of Fame” in the mid-1970s, charter selections at Clemson included McFadden and Howard, with Neely joining them shortly thereafter. Parker and Wade were charter selections at Duke.

Brent Bredin served as Clemson’s sports information director from 1952-55.

Banks McFadden burst on the national scene with his performance in a then-allowed spring football game at Duke in 1939.

1981 Revisited

By Tim Bourret

Each home program throughout the remainder of the 2001 season we will take Clemson fans back 20 years to review the greatest season in school history. This week, with the help of former All-American Perry Tuttle, we will reflect on Clemson's midseason wins over Kentucky, Virginia and Duke.

—Editor

As the 14th ranked Clemson football team entered week four of the 1981 season at Kentucky, media across the country wondered if Danny Ford's offense was good enough to make Clemson a top-10 team by year's end. In the previous two weeks the Tigers had scored just 26 points, even though the defense had forced 14 turnovers in wins over Tulane and Georgia.

The feeling prevailed at halftime of the Kentucky game, Clemson's first ABC regional television game of the year. The Wildcats, known then for their prowess on the basketball court just as they are today, had a 3-0 lead at intermission and had held the Tigers to 57 yards rushing and eight yards passing.

But, the second half, the offense came out with authority. Danny Ford always told the media the most important part of a college football game was the first five minutes of the second half. That point was proven when Clemson took the second half kickoff and drove 83 yards for a score, a six-yard run by future All-Pro, but then second-team fullback Kevin Mack. After failing to convert a third-down in the first half, the Tigers converted three times in what might have been the most important drive of the season.

"When I look back on that season, the second half of the Kentucky game was a breakthrough for the offense," said All-America receiver Perry Tuttle. "At halftime we got together as an offense and said we needed to make something happen. We were embarrassed. The fans at Kentucky were more interested in tailgating; there wasn't much of an atmosphere. We had just come off a very emotional game against Georgia and we had let down. But, we got our act together in the second half."

The Tigers went on to score two more touchdowns in the second half and gained 213 yards of total offense. The Tigers could have scored a fourth touchdown, but the game ended with backup quarterback Anthony Parete taking a knee on the Kentucky five-yard-line.

"Over the first three games of the season it seemed we would wait for the defense to do something to set us up before we got going on offense," recalled Tuttle. "But, starting with the second half of the Kentucky game we made things happen on our own."

Now ranked ninth in the AP poll and 10th by UPI (which was the coaches poll in those days), the Tigers met Virginia in Death Valley for Homecoming. The outstanding play on offense and defense continued. "Homer Jordan started clicking," said Tuttle. "He made the offense go. Homer was born 20 years too early. When I look at the rise of the multi-talented quarterbacks in football today, Homer would have had a much better chance to make the NFL in this era."

Jordan was an efficient passer and ran the option with a high level of confidence over the three games at midseason. He was 9 for 16 for 161 yards and no interceptions through the air in the 27-0 win over Virginia, then completed 13 for 19 for 198 yards and a touchdown in a 38-10 victory at Duke.

"Homer set the stage. He was and still is a quiet guy, but he could lead. A good leader to me is someone who can get you to do what the team needs you to do. That was Homer. People followed his lead. On the field he had the ability to put the ball where only I could catch it. And, when he ran the option he knew just when to pitch it and just when to keep it."

Jordan and Tuttle combined on five pass receptions in the win over Duke for 86 yards, including a 29-yard touchdown pass. The 38-10 win over Duke was the top offensive performance of the 1981 season to date, as the Tigers gained 563 yards of total offense.

That was an important win because Duke had upset the Tigers the previous year. Clemson had jumped out to a 4-1 start, but then freshman quarterback Ben Bennett led Duke to a shocking 34-17 win in Death Valley. The Blue Devils have not won at Clemson since.

"The Duke game was a payback game," said Tuttle. "They had basically ruined our season in 1980." After the 4-1 start in 1980, Clemson lost four out of five starting with the loss to the Blue Devils.

Danny Ford was an offensive lineman during his playing days at Alabama, so a tough ground game was always a key to his attack. The wins over Kentucky, Virginia and Duke at midseason featured an offense that successfully ran over people. The Tigers had 177 yards rushing in the second half against Kentucky, then picked up 265 on the ground in the win over Virginia and 323 in the win at Duke.

"The offensive line came together at that point of the season. And, Cliff Austin and Chuck McSwain became quite a combination. We ran the ball so much we needed two tailbacks. By the end of the season they had similar yardage, but they never seemed to do it in the same game. One week Austin would have the big game, then the next it would be McSwain."

That was the case in the three games under discussion today. McSwain came off the bench to gain 107 yards in the win over Kentucky, all but 22 in the second half. Austin had the big day against Duke with a season high 178 yards, including a non-scoring 77-yard run, the longest play of his career. The tailbacks also had some outstanding fullbacks leading the way in starter Jeff McCall and reserve Kevin Mack, who was a sophomore at the time. McCall went on to win a Super Bowl ring with the Raiders, while Mack was a two-time Pro Bowl performer with the Cleveland Browns.

"McCall was a great blocker," recalled Tuttle. "He really made some holes for the tailbacks. Then we had Kevin Mack off the bench. All four of those backs went on to lay in the NFL."

The win at Duke lifted Clemson to a perfect 6-0 record, Clemson's first 6-0 start since 1948. The Tigers also moved into the number-four spot in the Associated Press poll, at the time Clemson's highest AP ranking in history.

With home games against N.C. State and Wake Forest in the next two weeks, the nation was starting to take notice of this Tiger team that had gone from nowhere in the preseason to a top five ranking just six games into the season.

The Last Word

By Tim Bourret

When Bob Bradley began his sports information career at Clemson in 1955, Frank Howard was already an established legend of Clemson athletics. He was in his 16th year as head football coach and athletic director and one of the most respected coaches in the business. Howard was especially adept at dealing with the media, so he made Bradley's adjustment to the profession an enjoyable experience. It provided Bradley with a foundation for a career that lasted until his death last October.

In 1978, when I came to Clemson as the assistant sports information director under Bradley, my main responsibility was to handle media relations and publications for the men's basketball program. The coach who showed me the ropes was the already successful and respected Bill Foster. Today he is one of nine inductees into the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame, an induction that is most deserved.

Foster was glad to have someone who was dedicated to basketball, and I was relieved to work with a coach who felt I had an important task in the future of his program. It was my first job out of school and I wanted to get off to a good start.

Al Adams, who was my predecessor prior to leaving the athletic department to start the Orange & White, told me Coach Foster was everything that was right about college athletics. He cared about his players on and off the court, and he cared about the people who worked with his program.

About two weeks into my employment, my car broke down. Coach Foster overheard a conversation I was having on the subject and he promptly handed me the keys to his car. I always felt welcome at his home for an occasional dinner, watched many a college game in his den, and accompanied him on recruiting trips. I still remember the June 1, 1981 early evening we drove to Black Mountain, NC to watch future NBA #1 draft choice Brad Daugherty workout with his high school team. Coach Foster was the only head coach in attendance that night, an example of his willingness to give that extra effort.

When an athletic director evaluates the performance of a coach at the Division I level there are many factors taken into account. Each has a list of critical points, but chances are winning percentage, fund-raising, academics, recruiting, promoting the program and showing compassion for the student-athlete are all high on the list.

Few coaches in Clemson history have reached the high level in all the above listed areas as Foster did during his tenure (1975-84) in Tigertown.

Foster was a winner and that was not easy because he inherited a program on three-years NCAA probation in 1975. He took the Tigers to a 22-win season in his second year with Tree Rollins, then proved he could win with players he recruited by taking the Tigers to the Final Eight of the NCAA Tournament in 1980.

That is still a benchmark season in Clemson basketball history. It remains Clemson's only NCAA regional final season, and the only season Clemson has ever upset six top-20 teams. One of the wins was the school's first ever victory over the number-one team, an 87-82 overtime thriller against Duke. No Clemson team defeated another number-one team until Larry Shyatt's Tigers upset #1 North Carolina last year.

Foster had a knack for finding the "Diamond in the Rough." Moose Campbell, the starting center on the 1980 team, had no other Division I offers. He dominated Mike Gminski by scoring 28 points in Clemson's win over Duke. Foster had to fight off Anderson Junior College to get Larry Nance, who went on to an NBA All-Star career. The same goes for Horace and Harvey Grant. Horace now has four NBA World Championship Rings, more than any other Clemson athlete in any sport. Both have had double digit season NBA careers.

One of Foster's great accomplishments might have come in the 1980-81 season when he took the Tigers to a 12-1 start and the championship of the R a i n b o w Classic. The Tigers defeated Indiana and Isaiah Thomas on the way to the title. Bobby Knight's Hoosiers went on to win the national championship, still the only time Clemson has defeated the eventual national champion.

That trip to Hawaii was as much an educational adventure as it was a championship journey. The team took a tour of the Honolulu, went to shows and toured Pearl Harbor. Foster arranged to have guides tell of the history of the 50th state. I came away feeling the players could have gotten a few credit hours for this trip.

"Our program is bigger than basketball!" was the slogan for Coach Foster's program. It was more than just a recruiting slogan. Every extended road trip he worked side tours in the schedule to broaden the horizons of the players. They were entertaining and educational.

Foster was ahead of his time when it came to student-athlete enrichment. Each year he would bring in an accountant to lecture the players on balancing a check book. Someone would talk to the team about manners. He also held mock job interviews so his players would be ready when they went job hunting at the end of their playing career. I look at the model program Clemson has at Vickery Hall under Bill D'Andrea and many of the programs now in place were the brainchild of Bill Foster.

It is obvious by looking at the lives of his former players, that his program was bigger than basketball. Within the last year, Chris Dodds, a point guard on Clemson's 1980 NCAA Regional finalists, was named Chief Financial Officer of Charles Schwab Corporation.

The starting point guard on that team, Bobby Conrad, was appointed by Attorney General Janet Reno two years ago as the Chief of the United States Department of Justice Campaign Financing Task Force. He is now the United States District Attorney for Western North Carolina.

Last December, while traveling on a mission to Kenya, former Tiger Clarke Bynum successfully restrained a man who was trying to hijack a British Airways flight as it went into a nosedive. He received a presidential commendation by Clemson President Jim Barker for his heroism that saved hundreds of lives.

After 156 Clemson victories, including a record 16 against top-20 teams, Foster moved on to Miami (FL) in 1984, then to Virginia Tech, where he finished his career with more than 500 victories. Today, he is retired, enjoying the fruits of his 34 years in the profession in Blowing Rock, NC with his wife Linda and the frequent visits from their children and grandchildren.

Coach Foster left Clemson 17 years ago, but I haven't gone more than a couple of months at a time without speaking with him. Once a year Al Adams and I get together with Foster at Grandfather Mountain for some golf in conjunction with the ACC Sportswriters Association outing. I still seek his advice on various subjects and he still provides me with a guiding light, whether it be professionally or personally.

Bob Bradley had Frank Howard and I had Bill Foster. We were both very fortunate.

Tim Bourret is in his 13th year as the Clemson Sports Information Director.
